SUMMARY.

Large flotillas of German destroyers and huge submarines are reported in the Sound heading southwards.

There is considerable activity on the part of hostile artillery north-east of Ypres and in the coast sector.

"The activity of our artillery on the battle front continues," remarks Sir Douglas Haig.

British aeroplanes carried out a very successful raid upon German territory on Wednesday.

They attacked a factory westward of Saarbrucken, 40 miles beyond the German frontier, many bombs being dropped.

A French communique reports lively artillery actions, particularly in the region of Plateau d'Ailles and on the right of the Meuse.

Enemy aeroplanes violently bombarded Nancy. Ten civilians were killed and 40 injured.

Five enemy aeroplanes were destroyed on Tuesday, and the previous day 20 others fell out of control in their own lines.

French aeroplanes heavily bombed military establishments in Volkslingen, and railway stations in Thionville.

The German Emperor's sudden rush to Sofia is said to be due to information that the Bulgars and Turks dislike another winter war.

The Emperor hopes to be able to revive their faith in Germany's cause.

The Germans pressed back the Russians in the direction of Moon Island interrupting the land communications.

The Russians have lost touch with their forces on Oesel Island.

Eye witnesses report that an enemy Dreadnought ran into a minefield. After an explosion the warship proceeded to the coast.

A German official message says:—We have overcome resistance on the Sworbe Peninsula and have full possession Oesel Island.

Naval encounters north of Oesel Island, and also in the Gulf of Riga, resulted in our favour, the message adds.

Anarchy is reported to be spreading in Russia. Bands of soldiers are marauding behind the fighting line.

The "Morning Post's" Petrograd correspondent has had a remarkable interview with General Alexieff.

The General said he would not attend the Paris Conference unless he was enabled to speak on behalf of the army.

The war, he continued, was a struggle between the Germanic and Anglo-Saxon races, the Russians being only toy figures.

England would never end the war without victory, and the utter exhaustion of Germany.

General Alexieff indicated the possibility of Japan entering upon the Russian stage of the war.

The French Chamber of Deputies at a secret session unanimously passed a vote of confidence in the Premier, M. Painleve.

Vienna newspapers state that peace efforts have ended, owing to the declarations of Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Asquith, and M. Ribot.

The Labour Council has asked the Amalgamated Painters and Decorators' Union to withdraw from the Council.

The shipping trouble is ended, as far as New South Wales is concerned.

Work on the water front will probably be in full swing in the course of a few days.

No trouble is experienced by shipping companies in obtaining crews for the steamers held up by the strike.

A fire broke out on board the steamer Marrinbar, berthed at Balmain, yesterday morning. The damage is estimated at £100.

The total admissions to Victorian prisons last year showed a decrease of 690 on the previous year.

At the Bathurst Synod, Bishop Long said Bishops brought from England were not conversant with Australian conditions.

A movement has been planned, apart from any political organisation, to petition for a referendum on compulsory military service.

The Victorian State coal mine at Wonthaggi caused the Government a loss of £20,630 in the last financial year.

At the Homebush sales sheep values were weaker and the market generally dull. Prices of cattle were also lower.

A substantial business was transacted in investment stocks yesterday. The leading lines changed hands freely at advanced prices.

An extensive business was done in mining shares. Barriers were firm, with a further rise in "Hills."

Among Westonias, Deeps were readily supported at firmer rates, and Consols were steady.

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

THE disfigurement that missing, decayed, or irregular teeth means to an otherwise attractive face need not be emphasised. It is self-evident; and the injury that is done the health by defective teeth is even greater than the harm done the appearance. Proper mastication of food is impossible. My treatment is thorough and effective, and marked by invariable gentleness. My method does not affect the patient whose heart is weak, and it suits the patient of 80 years as well as the child of 8. I will extract all your teeth absolutely painlessly or hand you £5 if you feel the slightest twinge, and if you can find a patient whom I have hurt I will give you £10.

DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES.

I specialise in platework, and can make you a lifelike, perfectly comfortable fitting set of artificial teeth, and will hand you a written guarantee which states that if a tooth breaks off in fair wear and tear I will repair it free. I guarantee my fillings, crown and bridge work also. Call to-day and let me examine your teeth, free of charge, and I will tell you candidly whether you need treatment or not. You will be under no obligation to have any work done whatever. Open until 6 p.m. daily (Saturdays included), and until 9 p.m. Fridays, Weds. half-holiday. MILLINERY.

THREE DAYS' SPECIAL DISPLAYS CONTINUE TO IMPRESS.

The constant arrival of fresh styles keeps our Millinery Salon up to the latest minute. Styles there are for every type—for Matrons and for Maids—in such delightful variety that the most difficult taste seldom fails to receive the utmost of satisfaction.
The Present Displays are organised to impress with a true sense of the splendid values always obtainable in Millinery at Farmer's. Here listed are:—

THREE EXAMPLES OF TO-DAY'S

KEEN VALUE .... 21/.

THE REFRESHING EFFECT OF KOKO ON THE SCALP

Comes as a delightful surprise to those who use it for the first time when their hair is falling and getting thin. Without this cool, refreshing effect Koko would still be a favourite dressing to make straight hair wavy, dull hair bright and glossy, for Koko fluffs the hair out in pretty waves and restores to dull, dead-looking hair the glossy brightness it used to have. We offer a 4/6 Trial bottle of Koko for 2/ (posted 2/) as the only way the full worth of Koko may be realised. Obtainable from Koko Depot, 2nd floor, Denison House, 380 George-street, near King-street, if this offer No DPH1017 is used.

WE CLEAN SUITS, DYE AND PRESS THEM.

Most men spend too much money on suits altogether.
Rogers Bros. are constantly cleaning and pressing suits that might otherwise be "finished with."
If a suit is only soiled we remove every trace of grease or stain.
If it is faded we can dye it a darker colour quite satisfactorily.

PANAMAS AND STRAW BOATERS, too, we are successful with.
In fact, it will pay you to send us your worn or soiled apparel.

"FIGHT THE FLY."

IT MEANS MORE PERSONAL COMFORT.

BETTER HEALTH, LESS CLEANING.

He's a dirty insect is the Summer Fly. He can never forget that he originated in dirt and filth—he fairly revels in them, and distributes them in turn on YOU, by swimming in your drinkables, crawling over your eatables, buzzing in your eyes and ears—and crowns all by disgustingly "decorating" everything in the home that he chooses as a resting place.

THESE FLY PAPERS,

FLY KILLERS, AND FLY TRAPS,

provide an instantly effective remedy for this annoying summer nuisance and DANGER TO HEALTH—and, as you'll observe, are a decidedly economic weapon, at—

NOCK AND KIRBY'S NOTED LOW PRICES.

THE FAMOUS "FLYSAC" FLY-CATCHER.—The cheapest, most effective, and most convenient "fight the fly" weapon a household can employ. It consists of a perfumed "ribbon," encased in a strawboard box, which you suspend from anywhere you choose. You pull a length of "ribbon" out, and when it has done its duty you can cut it off, burn it, and pull another length to keep the fly fight going.

1d EACH, 1/6 DOZEN.

"UNIVERSAL" FLY-CATCHER.—Similar to the above, but the "ribbon" is very much wider, which may possibly be an advantage where flies are very thick and worry.

1d EACH, 9d DOZEN.

STICKY FLY PAPERS.—The large oblong sheets you all know so well. A fly campaign which includes these, the "ribbon" catchers, and traps as well, works like a charm in fly extermination.

TWO SHEETS FOR ONE PENNY.

THE DAISY COMPANY IMPROVED FLY KILLER (The "Ideal"), being an ornamental enamelled metal case, square shaped, and fitted with four long, narrow wicks. Pouring a little water into the case dissolves a substance which has a particularly powerful attraction for flies. The wicks soak it up, the flies greedily suck the liquor, and DIE. Very economical in the "IDEAL" FLY KILLER—it lasts a whole season.

PRICE, 6d EACH.

"DANDY" CIRCULAR SHAPE FLY KILLERS.—The principle of operation is the same as above, the principal difference being in appearance, and that the wicks are round shaped. Will see a summer season through easily.

PRICE, 6d EACH.

GLASS FLY-CATCHER.—The good old favourite of our grandmothers. A good point about it is this—it can be perfectly cleansed.

PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

GAUZE WIRE FLY TRAPS.—Very effective, nothing offensive to the eye, and can be kept thoroughly sanitary by daily emptying. In two styles, as under:—

Balloon Shape, Bright Tinned Wire, 1/ each.
Blued Wire, tall shape, 1/3 each.

"THE FLYONOLA" AUTOMATIC FLY-CATCHER.—Country and suburban shopkeepers should have one in their windows to deal with the flies that get past the barriers, because this novel and effective FLY-CATCHER will attract sightseers, and that means customers. It is about 9in square, neat in appearance, is operated by clockwork mechanism, captures the flies in a quiet, clean, businesslike manner, and is entirely free from all eye-offending features. Boarding-houses, shops, and households can all do with this Automatic Fly Catcher.

PRICE, 12/6 COMPLETE.

TALES FROM THE TIVOLI.

Translated from the original poorjoy by Aunt-tigleh-nophanes.

Chronicle the Sixth.

Now, Ga-nob's wife, she-who-smooteh-his-socks, being safe in the house of mirth—The Ti-coll—splendid him, saying, "Why lookest thou so forsomely at the soldier on the Stage; am I nothing to thine?" and Ga-nob, fearing to take his eyes from the Stage lest he miss something, spake in the tones of the dove to her—sideways—and the manner of his speaking was thus: "Wife of my bosom, the maiden who disporteth for our pleasure before the footlights is beautiful to look upon, but not so beautiful as thou art, her smile is like unto moonbeams on the water, thy smile is like unto the sunshine across the tree-tops, thou art more comely than she, thou art my wife, but give again unto me the opera glasses, that I might get value for my shekels paid at the door."
Then did the argument start once again, so that Ga-nob was fain to place his hands over his ears, while keeping his eyes free for the grace and beauty of the dancer. If thou would'st read of how Ga-nob met he whom men called a Kid, and of what ensued, then purchase ye this paper at to-morrow's sunrise.

The best spread for your daily bread

You spread it on like butter. Some people use it with butter, some without; some have butter and "Red Feather" with bread, or prefer just "Red Feather" with toast, soda biscuits or crackers. There are many ways of using it.

But one thing is certain. To get that rich, luscious real Cheddar flavour you must insist on "Red Feather."

Miss Monro, Principal of the Cookery Section of the Technical College, Sydney, recommends this recipe for Cheese Biscuits:

Ingredients—Quarter tin "Red Feather" Cheese, 6 tablespoonfuls of flour, 2 ozs. butter, salt, cayenne, juice of half-lemon, yolk of one egg, little water.

Method.—Mix flour, salt and cayenne, rub in lightly the butter, then the Cheese. Mix yolk of egg, lemon juice and about 1 tablespoonful water together. Pour into the mixture making into a dry dough, turn on to a floured board, roll out rather thinly, and stamp out with a plain cutter. Bake on a greased oven sheet in a moderately hot oven from 10 to 15 minutes. They must only be a very pale shade. Do not remove from sheet till quite cold. When cold serve on a d'oyley, garnished with small sprigs of parsley.

THE STRIKE CASES.

Arrangements have been made for the holding of a special sitting of the Central Criminal Court at Darlinghurst on Monday, November 5, for the trial of certain cases arising out of the recent strike.

CONGREGATIONAL UNION.

When the Congregational Union resumed its sittings yesterday the conference on Our Churches and the World of To-day was continued.

The Rev. L. C. Parkin, M.A., read a paper dealing with sex relations and industrial questions. He said the industrial unrest questions were at bottom moral questions. No one could fail to see that from the point of view of Christ the position of things in the world to-day was not right. The world was divided because each side supported differing social ideals, but men to-day were ready for some meed of guidance in these matters. He advocated an experimental effort by the Church, and, amongst other things, suggested that the Wednesday evening meetings should be devoted for a time to studying these problems, and the conclusions arrived at could be collected and co-ordinated.

The Rev. F. Priest, in a paper, stated that every forward step in English liberty was taken after a religious revival; in other words, religious revival and reform went together. The world had suffered from a lack of the sense of sin, this lack was reflected in the acts of both sides in the industrial unrest, and we must get back to the original sense of right and wrong, and apply it to our industrial and national concerns.

The chairman referred to the invitation of the Prime Minister that Sunday next be made a special day of prayer for the Commonwealth and Empire, asked all Congregational ministers to do as requested at all their services.

Sir James Fairfax, who has completed his 83rd year, was specially congratulated by the union.

The executive committee for the ensuing year was elected:—Ministers, Revs. Messrs. A. P. Campbell, R. B. Reynolds, W. T. Kench, R. A. Thompson, M. L. Johnson, A. Deans, W. Allen, C. Whyte, F. Priest, and W. Touchell; laymen, Messrs. R. A. Dallen, E. K. Satchell, W. Roberts, W. W. Wyper, E. W. Greenhill, W. Peatfield, A. Preston, J. J. Witney, C. M. Cane, and H. E. Dadswell.

Reports from the mission movement, "Congregationalist," social study, historical, and public morals, and international goodwill committees were dealt with, and that of the New South Wales section of the Australian and New Zealand Union Executive Committee was presented.

The council of Camden College reported that there were eight students on the roll during the year, but five of these were absent for the whole or part of the year on military service, and a sixth enlisted at the beginning of 1917. One of their men, Mr. Eric G. Leask, was killed in action at Pozieres. There had, in consequence of the war, been a loss of prospective students.

Principal Thatcher moved the adoption of the report, and gave an account of the work done during the year. The report was adopted.

UNION OF CHURCHES.

MATTERS MOVING FORWARD.

"A very important step towards Church union was taken during the year," said the Rev. R. B. Reynolds, B.A., convener of the Church Union Committee of the Congregational Church, in presenting its report to the Congregational Union Assembly yesterday, "in regard to the union of the Churches." In June last the general conference of the Methodist Church of Australia decided to reopen negotiations with the Presbyterian and Congregational churches, appointed a large and representative committee which had been charged to confer with the committees of the other Churches referred to, to prepare a basis of union and to take such steps as might be deemed necessary to bring about a federation or organise union of kindred Churches. The appointment of representatives in each State was left to the State Conference, and in consequence it might not be possible for the members of the joint committee to open up negotiations until next March. An important instruction to the Methodist committee related to the necessity of taking co-operative action wherever possible during negotiations in connection with aggressive evangelism, Sunday school, and kindred matters, the combating of public evils and religious ministrations in sparsely populated districts, and other matters in which it might be found possible to take united action. The federal assembly of the Presbyterian Church came to a similar conclusion last year, and, in view of these decisions, there was no reason why steps should not be taken without delay to bring representatives of these denominations together. The Congregational committee had met and given consideration to the scheme of doctrine and polity proposed for the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational churches of Canada, but no meetings of the joint committee had been held for the reason already assigned. It was not, however, to be inferred that the question had failed to engage the serious thought of those especially engaged to deal with the matter. Principal Harper, of the Presbyterian denomination, in view of the progress made by his denomination, had been invited to address the assembly on the subject. The committee therefore recommended that it be re-appointed and empowered to negotiate as in previous years, and that it be an instruction to the committee to secure as far as possible a basis of joint action with the two Churches named.

Principal Harper, who was received with applause, said the question was as much alive as it ever was, indeed, much more so. (Applause.) It was brought up at the last meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly in Brisbane, and many outside thought it was shelved there. This, however, was not so, as the report was carried, but it was thought that the scheme should be accepted until it was referred back to the committee to revise it and compare it with the report from Canada. In the report the adherence to the Confession was very much modified in its stringency. The report was now in Melbourne, and had been revised and brought under the notice of the heads of the Congregational and Methodist Churches. It looked very much as if the three Churches should at last come together, but the Methodist committee was not authorised to go into the basis of discussion and doctrines. That held up the matter for a time, and it could not be dealt with until February, at the earliest. In the Presbyterian Church the enthusiasm for union was far greater than it had ever been. (Applause.) Up to now that Church had been making haste, and lowly, but it was making haste without being slow. (Laughter.) Points of difference had been minimised to such a degree that he believed they would get through them. (Hear, hear.) Personally, he had never strongly advocated the differences, he desired to see union attained—(applause)—and would be prepared to give up a good deal to secure it, and to see the three Churches united from Broome to Tasmania. The Presbyterians were ready now for what he believed was the last move, and all questions of polity were to be settled by having a large liberty, not by bringing each of the parties into a hard and fast line, but by leaving it to the congregations to manage their own affairs in this direction. (Applause.)

The report was adopted, and a committee elected as follows:—Revs. C. J. Cribb, A. P. Campbell, Dr. Roseby, F. H. Toms, W. L. Patison, J. Buchan, W. T. Kench, P. Watson, Principal Thatcher, and R. B. OUR NEW SERIAL.

"Sylvia," our new serial, is among the latest contributions to popular fiction by L. G. Moberley, author of "That Preposterous Will" and other fascinating works. The story centres around the adventures of a young medical man and his ward, whose welfare has been entrusted to him by Harry Brentwood, a former fellow student at Guy's Hospital, who has proved a failure in Rhodesia. John Camberley—for that is the name of the medico—had succeeded to the flourishing practice of his father, but his professional prospects had been marred by a scheming woman, and in the opening chapter of the story he is disconsolately waiting in the consulting room for patients who never come. He was the most brilliant man of his year at Guy's, and at 28 he was the most sought after medical man in his neighbourhood. Now he was a pariah, and a woman had wrecked his life. As he sits writing an article for a medical journal, with bitter memories surging through his fevered brain, Sylvia Brentwood, a girl in her teens, comes into his life, and the story, as it runs through successive chapters, deftly turns upon the clashing of human interests as revealed in various personages, who appear upon the scene—the Ormonde family, whose two daughters are interested in East End factory girls, Nita Danvers, who jilts Camberley for a richer man, Nigel Danton, who meets Sylvia in Switzerland, and other characters whose doings serve but to enchain the interest of the reader in a remarkable way. The tale is replete with stirring incidents, relieved by a charming love story, and as it is cleverly written it cannot fail to prove welcome to our readers. The first instalment will be published in the "Herald" on Tuesday next.

Mr. T. T. Cambell, gen. sec. Farmers and Settlers' Association, Sydney, speaks highly of Clements Tonic as a nerve medicine. All farmers and pastoralists should note this.—Advt.

RELIGIOUS LITERATURE.

PROPHECY AND HISTORY.

There are two distinct schools of interpretation regarding the apocalyptic books of the Bible, the Book of Daniel in the Old Testament and the Book of Revelation in the New Testament. The one view, which may be called the view of modern scholarship, is that these books were intended to encourage the saints in evil times of persecution with the hope of speedy victory; the other view is that in these books the future history of the world is presented in symbolic language. According to the former view the outlook of the writer does not go much beyond his own day, as far as national events are concerned; according to the latter view the history of the Roman Empire, of the Papacy, of Mohammedanism, and of our own day was seen in vision by the prophet and presented in vivid pictures. Each man will come to his own conclusion as between these views, but he need have little hope of persuading the man of opposite view. The present awful upheaval in world history naturally gives opportunity to interpreters of prophecy to draw aside the veil and see the things which are hidden from ordinary mortals. We all long to know the course and outcome of great movements in which we are involved, and turn a ready ear to the man to whom all these things are plain. Among interpreters of prophecy, who believe that the detailed history of the world is laid out for us in the last book of the Bible, Dr. Grattan Guinness holds an honoured place. His splendid Christian service, his devotion to world evangelisation, his sincere piety and unquestioned sincerity, make his name one of honour in every section of the Christian Church. Dr. Guinness has been a diligent student of prophecy for many years, and is probably the most representative man of what one may term the Millenarian School. To the literature he has already published he now adds a volume which is apologetic in its aim, as showing how history has so far confirmed the line of interpretation he favours. The author's position is that God has not only given the vision, but also the explanation of the vision, and this volume traces the fulfilment of that vision up to our own day, thus confirming the explanation as Dr. Guinness and his friends understand it. This method can be made impressive, for the forms of evil against which St. John wrote recur in history and the symbolism of the Revelation can be made to fit them without undue straining.

The first question to settle is whether the writer was looking down the ages or was dealing with events of his own century. We believe the latter, Dr. Guinness believes the former. All sections are agreed that "Babylon" stands for Imperial Rome, and that the persecuted Woman and Child represent the Jewish Christian Church. But differences speedily arise as to the "dragon," the "beast," and "the false prophet." In these Dr. Guinness sees, respectively, heathenism and infidelity, the Papacy, and Ritualism. The drying up of the Euphrates represents the waning power of the Turk, while in a later scene it is the decrease in the material wealth of the Papacy, coincident with the issue of hosts of frogs from the river, indicating that the lessening wealth of Rome is connected with the French Revolution, for "it is a curious physiological fact that frogs abound in France," and "the old French banners had three frogs as their device." Especially does Dr. Guinness see in this Apocalypse the history of Papal Rome, and the loss of temporal power just when Papal infallibility was formally declared. The whole question is one of method of interpretation, and the author of the present volume claims that his method is that consistently followed from the beginning. He makes much of Tertullian and Victorinus, but he ignores on the other side Tyconius (middle of fourth century), whose commentary on Revelation profoundly influenced the Western Church. However, the history of interpretation as given by the author is interesting and valuable if somewhat one-sided. The dividing line is between the "continuous-historical" method and the "contemporary-historical," with variations as by Milligan and Gunkel. The weight of ancient interpretation was with the former, and of modern interpretation with the latter. If the former be accepted, then no better guide can be followed than Dr. Guinness, for he has made a prolonged study of the subject, knows the literature on that side, and knows history. Modern scholarship believes that the symbolism of the book refers to contemporary history, and that the "hidden one," and he of the wounded head, was none other than Nero, whose reappearance was expected and feared, and that the mysterious number of "six hundred and sixty-six" was "Caesar Nero." In this view all the references to Rome belong to Imperial and not to Papal Rome. The main value of this strange book, however, lies in its confident assurance that against God's Church not even the gates of hell can prevail, and that evil, however powerful for a time, will go down before the power of righteousness. These are principles which are applicable to every age, and have no doubt found their application more than once in the history of Europe, and we hope will find them so again in our own day. So also in so far as Papal Rome follows in the way of Imperial Rome will the symbolism of the Apocalypse apply to her; but that is not the same thing as to say that the writer looked down the centuries and saw the vision of things to come in mediaeval and modern Europe. If he did, then Dr. Guinness is a worthy guide to the Book of Revelation.

PROVIDENCE AND FAITH.

These days raise many hard problems, and religion cannot escape. Faith must be embracive of every human experience, and be able to meet, even if it cannot explain, the course of events. Primarily and ultimately all these questions resolve themselves into our doctrine of God. The author of "Providence and Faith" is not, we understand, a trained theologian, but unquestionably he is a clear and vigorous thinker, with an assured faith that God is and God rules, and an equally emphatic belief that man is free to choose either good or evil. The book has a long but interesting introduction by Rev. Charles Matthews, who does not spare his own Church or any other in his condemnation of self-satisfied religion. As he says: "The truth is that while the Church on occasion talks of making the world new, it does so without seeing that if it is to hope to accomplish this task its first duty is to be renewed itself, in all its doctrines, its policies, and its practices, by the life-giving spirit of the living God." Mr. Matthews has some sweeping charges to make against the clergy, chiefly on the ground that they are repeating ancient platitudes which bring chaos into the mind of the man in the pew in face of existing world conditions. It is due, he says, to "the general failure of the clergy to read or to think," but the very vigour of Mr. Matthews' attack carries him beyond his objective, if one may use the language of war correspondents. All the same, one can enjoy and appreciate Mr. Matthews' call to reality and straight thinking.

When we turn to the author's own statement we come into contact with a mind refreshing in its honesty, clear in its thinking, and plain in its expression. It is essentially a constructive book. Mr. Palmer feels what many preachers are coming to realise, that faith to-day is concerned directly with God. What kind of God do we believe in? It is amazing to know how strangely astray many good people are in their doctrine of God, and for that the Church is not blameless. As our author says, the man who believes in God wrongly is often more dangerous to the world than the man who does not believe in God at all. No one would deny that the German Emperor believes in God, but it is "our own German God," a God who does what is wanted of Him, not a God who requires us to obey His will. Mr. Palmer does not enter upon any arguments for the existence of God. What he is concerned about is the character of God and his relation to man. On one point the author is emphatic—man's free will. As he boldly puts it, a man "because he is a man has his right to be damned," if he chooses to go that way; "take away that right and the opportunity to use it, and he ceases to be a man." This implies a self-limitation of God. Divine omnipotence is not God's power to do anything, but God's power to do what He chooses to do—a choice always consonant with His own nature and man's free will. On these lines Mr. Palmer works out his message, and it is a message of light in these days of doubt and darkness.

A SOLDIER'S LEASE.

At a meeting of the Bogan Shire Council the Shire Clerk, Mr. G. C. Shaw, asserted that the local land board assessed an improvement lease of 5554 acres, in the parish of Mudall, which was taken up by a returned soldier, at £86 per annum—4d per acre—whereas at the very outside it was only worth 1½d or 2d an acre. The adjoining land was leased out by the Crown as a settlement lease at ¼d per acre. The clerk also complained concerning the treatment that the man received while in the witness-box. It was resolved to write to the Minister for Lands directing his attention to the matter.

Oastler shook himself into the practical world of everyday. He saw a man and a maid who were destined for each other, so far as he could judge—a comely and a gallant pair—and it seemed right that they should be left alone. So he told them that he had business in the Dale before he came to sup at Moorseats, and left them in this wilderness of moor and the acres that Jasper was snatching from its mouth.

They faced each other, these two who had been lovers and comrades since their childhood's days. The acne and hardship of their separation—the love-lore it had taught them, deeper than any easy road of marriage could have shown—the wonder now of finding each other on the open hills, with all the wizardry of heath and sundown and the crying plover round them—all was gathered into their hands.

Yet still Jasper made no step toward her, but stood far off, like a would-be worshipper who feels himself too soiled to enter the church door. That had been the way of his caring for her, since gossip had spattered him with mud she must not share.

"We talked about punctilio once, your mother and I," said Hazel, demure and roguish both. "We agreed that it was a fine, mettled horse to ride. But, then, of course, the trouble about a thoroughbred is that he'll carry you till he drops, and you with him. No, you will not interrupt me, Jasper. There has been a cloud about you of some kind—some gossip set about that I can only guess at. Why did you not bring it to me?"

"Because I had to kill it first, child."

"You trusted me so little? Am I so—so slight and helpless—that all the dragons in the wood must be slain by you?" Her eyes grew bright, her voice deep and steady. "You ought to have come, and told me yes or no, if it were true. If they lied—as of course they do—I should have gone about the parish saying that my man never stooped from his full height. And if—if it were true—why, then, I should have told them that my man could do what he pleased, since he had rescued Mr. Oastler's children. And I'm talking so fast, and showing you so much of my heart. But, Jasper, I've been lonely since you left me. I feel grown-up, and old, and ugly."

Jasper laughed from sheer delight. She was so much in earnest, so young and dainty in her charm, so made up of sunlight, and wayward, woodland shadows, that the winter's spite went by. He looked neither before nor after, but kissed her once for all, and wondered that gossip could have hindered them so long.

"Goldilocks, we're mated," he said, as they went down the pasture with a deep, still content about them.

"It is all like steps in a ladder—just like steps in a ladder. It had to be, Jasper, since—since you found me in the wood."

So many things had to be, they explained to each other—so many secrets were shared at last—that this world of ruddy sunset, and curlews crying overhead, seemed too small for them. And so they went hand in hand together, two children proved by suffering, and were content to know that nothing would ever matter again in this queer world of to-and-froing.

Yet that night, as he watched Hazel's light gleam out across the misty valley, a shadow stole across his well-being. Something would always matter. He knew it, now that he found himself alone. He might bring Hazel all that he had to give, but it would be shadowed by the Dale's remembrance of Roper's lass.

Again his dark hour came to him; for his caring was not of yesterday, and it was clean as Cringle Water.

CHAPTER XX.

JOURNEYS' ENDING.

Dick, the prodigal, came swinging home through Consett, three days later, and encountered Murgatroyd at the Elm Tree Tavern, where he stayed to slake a well-found thirst.

The mill-master glanced up as he came in, and nodded a rough greeting. "Pleased to see you, after all this while. You're the best o' the Moorseats breed, I always said, with none of their mucky pride about you."

Old antipathy to the man was roused in a moment, as if the wanderer had never left the Dale. "Mucky is as mucky does, Murgatroyd. Are you still breaking children on your cursed mill-wheel?"

Murgatroyd's tone altered suddenly. He took a gulp at his mug, and Dick saw by the quavering hand that it was one of many such long draughts.

"I won't be told o' them. I won't hear them spoken of, I tell you. That would be a daft trick, wouldn't it, when I've found a way to drown those bairns that go haunting me?"

Dick listened, with a hard, sick dismay, as the other maundered on. Knowledge of drunkards gleaned overseas told him that Murgatroyd was far gone, and ripe for other hauntings that he did not dream of.

"What I does is this," went on the mill-master. "I was shy of liquor once. It hindered money-making. Then Richard Oastler came putting his ugly face into the village, and naught went right afterwards. He like as he bewitched the place. I couldn't go home at dusk, but bairns came running i' front o' me, tripping me up—and bairns following helter-skelter afterwards—and me that never had chick nor child o' my own, and never wanted any. But I've found a way wi' them, I have. For every one o' them that comes crying and sobbing, I step into the Elm Tree here, and drown the lile, daft thing in a mug o' rum. It takes a deal o' rum, and costs a lot o' money—but I drown 'em, safe as Judgment."

Dick finished his pint of ale, and turned without a word. Murgatroyd had never been comely to hear or see, but now he was so past himself, so utterly unlovely and forlorn, that he roused a kind of grudging pity.

"So you're going, without a good-bye or a hand-shake?" said the other, moved to maudling fierceness. "Well, then, you can just ask your brother what he's doing with his pride these days."

Dick wondered idly what he meant, then forgot Consett and its foulness as he got up the well-remembered track that led to Roper's farm. He had missed Jess during his exile, and the way of his heart for her had been made plain by many a rough road and by many a camp-fire when he could not sleep o' nights. If it was not she who had brought him home, it was because he had found his luck out there, and hoped to make enough from gold-winning to buy a prosperous farm before he asked her to come and share it with him.

All the way up the track the wild rose fragrance of the hedgerows caught his memory unawares. There was the smell of the hay, too, as it lay in browning furrows to the sunlight. It was good to find an end to wandering, with Jess at the finish of it.

As he neared the farm, and saw Roper busy in the meadow, he looked for the sunbonnet that made Jess bonnier than any woman need be. He grew impatient when he could not see her, working busily as of old; for, like all his race, he needed his desires to come quick and ready to his hand.

Roper came down the meadow with long easy strides, raking the hay as he went, and halted at the boundary-wall to mop his brow.

"Hardish work, eh, Roper?" said Dick.

The other turned, and a quiet smile of welcome came about his big, good-natured mouth when he saw the wanderer leaning over the wall, as if there had been no break of intercourse since yesterday.

"Nay, easy, if it weren't for this durned sun that's like a furnace. I never knew such heat. And where have you been, Master Dick, if a plain body might ask?"

"Over the world's rim, and a bit beyond. I was doing well, too, for the first time in a random life—seeing a lile fortune in the making, Roper."

"Then why, for sake's sake, did ye come back again? There's naught to be earned hereabouts, save sweat and the rheumatics."

Dick did not answer for awhile. Doubt assailed him for the first time since he gave up much for the twin who had summoned him across the seas. "How is the Squire these days?" he asked suddenly, dreading the answer. "Hale and hearty, and getting rich in earnest. Leastways, his lands are. I never saw such a change in a man. Early and late he's at it—getting the last o' Lonesome Heights into tillage again, or mending fences here and there, or seeing that the backsliding sort pay up their rents the very day they can afford them."

"And I fancied he needed me," said Dick, with rueful laughter at himself and all things. "Roper, you know that old-wives' tale about the chain that binds twins together? I'd no time to think of it in the busy life out yonder, until it began to pluck and nag at me unawares. I put it down to a touch of the sun, or malaria, or what not; but the chain tightened, bit by bit, and dragged me home at last. Well, I was always a bit of a fool; and I'll be getting back again, after I've seen my folk at Moorseats."

Again his glance sought the meadow, and the farmstead up above, for a glimpse of a trim figure that did not come.

"Where's Jess?" he asked impatiently. "She used to help you with the hay."

Roper's cheery face hardened, lest the tears should come. "Jess? She's over at Consett yonder."

"To be sure, it's market-day there."

"Ay, it's market-day, to be sure; but she's in Consett on a quieter sort of errand—in the kirkyard."

Scalds & Burns

ZAM-BUK is Cooling, Soothing and Healing.

THE maddening smart of a burn or scald (and the fact that the action of the air is injurious) calls for the immediate application of Zam-Buk.

Keep a pot of this soothing first-aid in the most-get-at-able place. The kettle may boil over or lurch from the hob at any moment, and there is daily risk of similar mishaps to men, women, and children alike.

Lighting one's pipe isn't always safe and painless; lifting dishes from the oven and washing up have their own warm surprises; and the youngsters learn many painful lessons about playing with fire.

"A burnt child dreads the fire"—but if mother has applied Zam-Buk it loves this pure, healing balm ever afterwards. Zam-Buk is soothing and cooling, and besides subduing pain and inflammation it helps to grow new skin. Much tissue is often destroyed, and those who have watched a burn or scald heal up under Zam-Buk's beneficent influence have often marvelled at the wonderful work resulting from the application of a balm which works hand in hand with Nature so harmoniously and effectively.

FEET TERRIBLY SCALDED.

Quinn, 30 Duke-street, East Sydney, N.S.W., "the bottom came out, and the hot liquid went all over my feet, scalding them in a shocking manner. I suffered dreadfully from the terrible pain. Large blisters formed, and when they burst, left the surfaces of my feet red raw. Having Zam-Buk at hand I quickly applied it.

"Zam-Buk took out the terrific heat from the wounds, and allayed the inflammation, besides proving most soothing and cooling. The balm then set up rapid healing, and in a short time my feet were completely better."

ON THE LAND.

POSITION AT YANCO.

A few days ago we referred to the dissatisfaction that continues amongst many of the settlers on the Murrumbidgee irrigation areas and the demand for a reclassification of the land. The position has not been improved by later developments, as we are credibly advised that notice has been served on the settlers whose cases were heard by Judge Bevan that they must accept the terms offered by the commission—following upon Judge Bevan's report—within twenty-eight days or they will be withdrawn. Seeing the actual position this is somewhat drastic action, and would seem to require further inquiry. Apparently the matter is one of local administration, as we were informed by Mr. Dare yesterday that it was in the hands of Mr. Sendall, the resident commissioner. Quite recently a deputation waited upon the Acting Premier and placed the position before him. Mr. Fuller, we understand, stated, in view of the representations made, that the whole question would be held up for reconsideration. If so, why are the settlers concerned further perturbed by a notice which must cause anxiety by placing them in the position of having to accept certain terms or, presumably, in many cases, run the risk of losing their farms. Before any such step is taken the matter might well be considered by the Government. The settlers are entitled at least to know why Judge Bevan's recommendations have been departed from radically. The terms offered by the commission are very different in nearly all cases to the Judge's recommendations. In some cases the difference is surprising. Last year, when the Premier visited the areas and investigated conditions he promised to have a full inquiry made into the claims of the settlers. Judge Bevan was accordingly, later, on, appointed to make such inquiry, which was duly held in open court. Following upon the evidence placed before him, the Judge made definite recommendations in the case of each settler who made a claim. It may be that the Government feels justified in modifying these recommendations, particularly in some cases, but surely before any drastic alteration was made, at the expense of the settlers, the latter are entitled to know the reason and given an opportunity to prove their case.

CLINTON ESTATE.

The soldiers' settlement area at Clinton, in the Inverell district, looks a picture at the present time, and certainly shows every indication of being a model mixed farming proposition. In addition to 180 acres of fruit trees in bearing, another 60 acres have been planted out. There are 500 ewes and lambs and 300 sows running on the property. Eighty acres are under wheat, and an area has been sown with lucerne, while the potato crop, planted amongst fruit trees, looks well. In addition, two acres of asparagus have been planted. All the work since the estate was taken over has been done practically by returned soldiers, only one of whom had previous experience. There are 29 men on the place who have done the necessary planting, pruning, spraying, etc. The blocks have been designed and a majority of them allotted. Forty acres of the bearing trees are being retained as a training farm. At present the men are working under supervision. It is estimated that about 8000 cases of cherries will be taken off the orchard this season.

THE BLOW-FLY PEST.

The executive committee of the Commonwealth Advisory Council of Science and Industry has given attention to the problem of finding remedies for the blow-fly pest, in view of its very serious nature. It is estimated that, in a bad season, the loss caused to the sheepowners and wool merchants by the attacks of the pest amounts to £4,000,000. The executive committee has come to the conclusion that the best way in which the Commonwealth can assist in the investigation of this important problem is by granting assistance to those who are already conducting researches, since independent researches undertaken by the advisory council would necessarily result in overlapping of effort. On its recommendation, therefore, the Commonwealth Government has granted £500 for the present financial year to the New South Wales Pastoralists' Committee for the Investigation of the Blow-fly Pest. Major J. Douglas Stewart, director of veterinary services, professor of veterinary science in the University of Sydney, has been appointed to represent the Commonwealth Advisory Council on the committee. Arrangements are being made for co-operation between the advisory council and the Queensland Department of Agriculture and Stock in further investigations in that State, where the conditions are somewhat different from those existing in New South Wales. The blow-fly pest is also becoming serious in Western Australia, and the advisory council is in communication with the Western Australian Department of Agriculture as to the desirability of taking steps to combat it there.

BLACK SPOT.

A correspondent sent a cutting of a grape vine growing in a suburban garden to the principal of the Hawkesbury Agricultural College, and asked to be informed through the columns of the "Herald" what disease was attacking it. The following reply has been given:—"The grape vine, of which a branch is sent, has been attacked by black spot. The actual cause is a fungus parasite. Bordeaux mixture should be applied in summer strength, which may, whilst the shoots are young, be slightly weakened. In winter, after pruning, the stocks should be swabbed with sulphate of iron, 5lb in one gallon of water; or sulphuric acid, ¼lb in one gallon of water. All prunings should be burned."

FRUIT DISTRIBUTION.

The fruit distribution committee, appointed at the conference held on Wednesday, will hold its first meeting on Saturday next at 10 a.m. Mr. J. Neil has been elected chairman of the committee, and Mr. E. P. Crowther hon. secretary.

IRRIGATION AREAS.

"Prospective Settler" writes:—Reading your article on the above subject in issue of 15th inst., as an intending settler one feels that the remarks therein, though quite true, are somewhat inadequate in so far as they merely convey the idea that there is but one fault to be found in connection with the commission, namely, that the farms are not living areas. The majority of block holders other than those who applied for compensation are on land which they themselves are satisfied may be described as a living area and most of the dissatisfaction that grips the whole area at present may, I believe, be attributed to the fact that the many inducements, particularly of a financial nature, are no longer in existence. As a result of the withdrawal of these inducements development and progress have necessarily practically ceased, and production is entirely at the mercy of the almost hopeless possibility of funds being available at the critical moment when they must be there to do any good. As a man who has been amongst the settlers, I am perfectly safe in stating that I have not met one settler who has the slightest confidence in the commission. The administration at Yanco shows not the slightest trace of either encouragement or sympathy towards either the old or prospective settler. An area of land has been set aside at Mirrool for returned soldiers, and it is a duty to warn them to visit the area and stay there at least two months before trying to take up a block of land so that they may see exactly the state of affairs under the present administration. The State of New South Wales is being fooled and bluffed, and should protect its returned soldiers by demanding the fullest inquiries into the causes of the dissatisfaction existing at Yanco. Your article of 15th inst. is clear, and should call forth many letters from settlers and others, and expose the unbearable conditions under which they are struggling.

FODDER CROPS.

GULGONG.—On Mr. Robertson's farm at Tallewang some fodder plots were sown on an area of 11 acres, under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture. The seeds sown were skinless barley, Cape barley, rape, Sunrise oats, and Huguenot wheat. On August 8 a number of old ewes were put in to eat off the crops, and at different periods since additional sheep were put in. These sheep would have died, and practically been a total loss, but for the availability of this feed. Taking a very conservative estimate, the net gain by the possession of this winter feed is, Mr. May (agricultural inspector) says, £100. Owing to the late rainfall, which fell early in June, the rape did not get its growth. Skinless barley was first eaten out, then Cape barley. The sheep did not take to the Sunrise oats readily, and the Huguenot wheat was quite neglected by them. Taking the area eaten out by the sheep, neglecting the rape, Sunrise oats, and Huguenot wheat, the total area availed of by the sheep would be about 9 acres, from which, as has been said, a net gain of £100 was made.

WASTE IN WHEAT.

TAMWORTH.—At a meeting of the Tamworth Primary Producers' Union council Mr. M'Ritchie stated that the wastage through carelessness on the part of agents had been brought before the wheat sectional committee for discussion, but as the Wheat Board authorities had already appointed agents for the coming harvest it was found to be useless to push the matter this season. He believed in the practice that had been adopted in South Australia this season in appointing only one agent for each siding. This reduced expenses to almost a minimum, whilst, in addition, a sub-agent had an opportunity of grading wheat in stacks, thereby obtaining much greater advantages for suppliers.

Mr. Lord said this was a matter that must be gone into thoroughly before the 1918-19 harvest. He had seen large quantities of wheat wasted; in fact, at Nemingha it was a shame to see wheat now lying there on the ground inches deep which could be shovelled up. He thought agents of much more experience should be appointed. Wheat that was unripe, and which quickly bred weevil, had been refused by millers and taken to these agents, accepted, and stacked with first-quality wheat, with the result that in a very short time the whole stack had been overrun with the pest, and materially depreciated the whole of the wheat. He contended that great losses to farmers had been occasioned in this way. The farmers had been given to understand that the agents would individually be responsible, but they now discovered that the wheat pool had to bear the loss.

WESTERN WHEAT PLOTS.

GULGONG.—Mr. R. G. May, inspector, Department of Agriculture, recently concluded an official visit to the Mudgee district, in the course of which he inspected the department's experimental plots at Tallewang, Gulgong, and Ulan. Mr. May said the wheats in all the plots were doing exceedingly well.

FOR WAR CHEST DEPOT.

ALSTONVILLE.—In connection with the Agricultural Society's Exhibition, which is for patriotic purposes, in February next, has been decided to have a district exhibit of produce, which is to be given to the War Chest Fund and Vegetable Depot in Sydney.

MEAT WORKS.

GRAFTON.—The Ramornie meat works has closed down, after a most successful season, the first conducted under the new management. Its operations had a material effect on the supply of fat cattle, and at last week's sales bullocks at the South Grafton yards fetched £23, and cows to £18/10/, record prices for the yards. As a consequence, the local rate of meat has been advanced 1d per lb.

MUSHROOM CULTURE.

At the soldiers' settlement nursery at Glen Innes mushrooms have been sown as an experiment.

DAIRYING.

BEGA.—The Bega butter factory manufactured for September 34,693lb choicest and 7660lb first-grade butter, for which suppliers were paid 1/3¼ per lb net for both grades. The total pay was £3962 0s 3d.

BYRON BAY.—The last month's turnover of the North Coast Co-operative Butter and Bacon Company was £51,000. It made 290 tons of butter, and paid at the rate of 15¼d. It treated 1100 pigs, and paid 7d per lb. The increase in butter was 50 tons since last month.

MORUYA.—At the Moruya Co-operative Dairy Company, Ltd., during August, 16,286 gallons of milk, equalling 15,539 standard gallons, were delivered. For the month of September 1000 cheese, weighing 14,215lb, were shipped. The amount paid to suppliers was £259/14/3, being at the rate of 4d per standard gallon. The Kioro Co-operative Dairy Company's, Ltd., statement shows that for the past month 4834 gallons, returning 4648 standard gallons, of milk were received at the factory. The quantity of cheese made was 4849lb. Suppliers received 8¼d per standard gallon, amounting to £161/19/1.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

MANILLA.—Recent rains have brightened up the late sown wheat. The area this year was restricted to a little over half the ordinary acreage, under favourable conditions. The pastures are growing well, and stock movements are active.

WALCHA.—Recent showers have given the district a most promising appearance. Blowflies are proving troublesome, and the lambing returns will be far below the average.

LAND APPEAL COURT.

On Wednesday the Land Appeal Court (Mr. H. A. G. Curry presiding) reserved its decision in the matter of the application of Jerome Anderson to transfer settlement purchase No. 1910-6, Dunedoo, to Frederick Jerome Anderson. Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Crown.

The application by John Quilty for the conversion of his settlement lease, No. 1906-16, Condobolin, into a conditional purchase and a conditional lease, was next considered. Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Crown; Mr. Collins, instructed by Mr. G. C. Driffield, for respondent. The Minister's reference for decision was dismissed.

In the reference of the Minister for further consideration of the capital value of the land comprised in Hadley Melville Propsting's homestead selection, No. 1907-2, Warren, Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Crown. There was no appearance of respondent. The reference was sustained, and the Court determined the capital value of the land at £2/6/8 per acre.

Mr. Davies appeared for the Crown in the reference for return to local land board for rehearing of Walter Evans's application for a conditional lease, No. 1916-4, Bellingen. Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Crown. The Minister's reference was sustained, and the case remitted to the local land board for rehearing.

"EVOLUTION OF THE STATE."

Professor Francis Anderson opened a series of lectures in connection with the Workers' Educational Association at the Union Hall of the University. "The Evolution of the State" was the title of the lecture.

The lecturer, after a brief historical review of the evolution of States, spoke of China as an instance of arrested development. Germany, on the other hand, was an instance of reversion to the state of monstrous immorality. The Germany of to-day deliberately used moral instruments to promote immoral ends—it set the brutal might of man above the rights of man. Besides being the sovereign political organisation, the State should also be a great human organisation. Unless there was a close connection between society and the State the State would become a soulless bureaucracy—a gigantic juggernaut, crushing alike the interests of individuals and classes.

DIOCESAN CHURCH HOUSE.

There was a hearty response yesterday afternoon to the invitation of the ladies associated with St. Andrew's Cathedral and of the Home Mission Union to inspect the Diocesan Church-house. The guests were shown over the new building by a ladies' committee, and a pleasant hour was spent in going through the various offices and apartments, the spacious Cowper Hall, with its rich maple panelling, being generally admired. A meeting was subsequently held in the Chapter-house, over which Archbishop Wright presided. Addresses were delivered by Archdeacon Boyce, Mr. Minton Taylor, and Mr. W. R. Beaver, and a suggestion that the ladies of the diocese should undertake to furnish the rooms of the Church-house was warmly taken up. Afternoon tea was served, and an enjoyable musical programme, arranged by Mrs. Arthur Scrivener, was carried out by Miss Dulcie Huxtable, Miss Vera Scott, and Mr. Morris Scott (violin). Miss Vera Scott was the accompanist.

THE FRAME OF AN ARMY.

The War Office has effectively answered a statement by some Swedish newspapers, evidently intended to produce the impression that Great Britain cannot carry on an offensive for very much longer. The Swedish newspapers alleged that the daily rate of casualties among officers has been 511. The War Office answered that the rate was 183 per day during August, and 103 per day during September, the highest figure since the beginning of the offensive being 282, which was reached during the terrible and costly month of July, 1916. The comparison between August and September of last year, and between these two months and July of last year, will be a welcome confirmation of the official assurance that all the bitter fighting at Ypres has been conducted with economy of life. The assertion and the retort serve to remind us of one of the most formidable obstacles which Lord Kitchener and Sir William Robertson encountered in preparing the British army. The scepticism or the contempt with which German critics regarded the proposal of Lord Kitchener to form an army on the Continental scale was inspired by their belief that, however many men might be collected, officers could not be trained within the period of the war. When the defensive powers of the territorials and non-professional regiments had been tested, they still believed that the far harder task of an offensive would be beyond any new army. Obviously they had many facts to go on in their knowledge of British military organisation before the war and many more in the events which happened during the last months of 1914. But for the reforms introduced by Lord Haldane there would have been no framework within which the British army could expand to meet the first demands made upon it, and the supply of staff officers would have been even more inadequate than it proved to be in fact. Lord Haldane's work gave the country the expeditionary force and the territorial organisation, which rapidly expanded from fourteen divisions into twenty-eight. The expeditionary force during the great retreat and at Ypres showed themselves to be the incomparable nucleus of a great army. At Ypres they and the seventh division, which had joined them, were almost annihilated. One brigade of the seventh division, which in September had 143 officers and over 4000 men, in November had been reduced to eight officers and 400 men; another had four officers and 700 men. It was then that Lord French set up his cadet school within sound of the guns, and appealed to the highly trained corps, such as the Artists and London Scottish, which had joined him, to disband, so that their privates might become officers, and that he might have a well-officered division instead of a perfect battalion. The efforts made in England to provide the requisite number of officers during 1915 are as fine an example of individual patriotism and adaptability as is to be found in the history of the war.

But obviously during the first year of the war the authorities were much below the mark in their estimate of the needs of an officer's training. At first there was no material for instruction in trench warfare, such as entrenching tools, sandbags, barbed wire, and trench mortars. Even until the autumn of 1915 officers were sent to the front, who, for all their courage and gifts of leadership were useless, because they had had no training whatever. It was not until the appointment of Sir William Robertson as Chief of the General Staff that the necessity of a scheme of training was universally recognised, and that the means of securing it were set on foot. It is unquestionable that this weakness in the training of the British officer was one of the reasons for the failure of Lord French to gain any decisive success at Neuve Chapelle, at Aubers, and at Loos, and a main reason for the desire of Sir Douglas Haig to postpone his offensive until after July, 1916. The officers' schools had been sending officers to the front in great numbers towards the end of 1915, and very many commissions had been given from the ranks, but it was not until March, 1916, that Sir William Robertson had carried out his scheme, under which a candidate must first serve in the ranks or in an officers' training corps before being sent to a four months' course in an officer cadet battalion, in order to become eligible for a commission. The officer now, before he is sent to the front, has been instructed by men who are familiar with all the lessons of the war, and have every necessary appliance with which to illustrate their teaching. The fruits of the system, and of its extension to the higher ranks are seen in the army in France. Candidates who pass through the ranks are recommended, after constant observation. All officers must have shown gifts of leadership, be fit for any emergency, and possess adequate technical skill and knowledge. The speed with which the new training has been acquired has been as unexpected as the ease with which new hands have picked up the details of munition work. We can see its effect in the contrast between the respective positions of the British army at Ypres, and on the Somme. On the Somme it was tutored through all its opening movements by the French. At Ypres it is recognised as having a staff and a regimental organisation little short of perfection. At the head of the whole organisation is the general who saw the expeditionary force in the retreat, watched its great defence at Ypres, in conjunction with its first reinforcements, and saw the heroic struggles of the new army, when too ill-equipped for its task. If Sir Douglas Haig could have made his own opportunity the terrible losses of July of last year would have been avoided. It is the greatest tribute to his personality that, in spite of those losses, and of subsequent disappointments, he has retained the confidence of the army and the public. The Empire knows that in the crisis of the war its forces are directed by a commander-in-chief who, to his unrelenting determination, and his consummate ability, adds expert knowledge, and a full sense of the value of human life.

IS THE STRIKE ENDED?

Our news yesterday and to-day points to the end of the strike, in that the shipping companies have seen their way to commission their large steamers again, and a number of wharf-labourers have signed on for work. In Melbourne recalcitrant seamen are to find themselves faced with volunteers, who will make up the necessary crews; and all that will remain will be finally to clean up—a process which has already been under weigh for some time. That the position was again becoming serious was to be seen in the difficulties of the collieries supposed to be in full work. Coal has certainly been mined, and the railways have been handling as much of it as could be taken to port or market. But, with colliers idle, stocks began to accumulate, but not where they were wanted. The coal has simply piled up at the pit's mouth or has remained in the trucks; and soon the mines would have closed again. This had become, in fact, a matter of a few days. Thus the situation would have arisen of thousands of workers idle once more because coal was not forthcoming to run the factories. Then the old troubles of restricted light, power, and heat would have returned, but in a more aggravated form. Clearly the unionists, now all so anxious to get to work, and to keep on working, were bound to join forces; and the pressure upon those who have been obstinate from policy or stupidity has become too great to resist. It could be only a matter of time before unionism would turn upon its so-called leaders and rend them. The treatment of the seamen's officials from Sydney who went to Melbourne to argue with the irreconcilables would seem to have begun the wrong way; for the reasonable men were mobbed; but the end would come. The punishing of men, in or out of authority, who held up the community, and were condemning thousands of innocent people to starvation with the strike practically over, was only a matter of time.

We have already suggested that there may be no end to the recent trouble called a strike, because it is part of the war. Everything that has transpired, since the originators of the mischief were seen to be beaten, shows that this is the case; and war must be the condition of trade and industry throughout the Commonwealth until every man employed in the most important industries is known to be an honest British citizen, and a loyal worker. This is a large order, no doubt; and the war will probably end before we get anywhere near such a certainty. Traitors and disloyalists will begin now to hide their tracks; and their tricks will be practised the more cleverly and cautiously. But the unions, in self-defence, must purge themselves of every leader and member under a cloud, unless clear evidence is given of honesty. This again may seem like a counsel of perfection—even of persecution. An atmosphere of suspicion soon creates trouble; for alleged spies and traitors multiply by being sought out under conditions of panic. But there is a mean between the extreme of recklessness already reached by Australian unionism and the other extreme of nervousness and wholesale denunciation. We write of Australian unionism. The average unionist in this great land, if he be an Australian, is not, naturally, quarrelsome or extremist. He is inclined to be careless, and is easily led or influenced. To him now the community looks to place unionism in Australia on a better footing. Most of the trouble up to date has come with the advent of outsiders who are agitators or avowed members of the I.W.W., and of others who are definitely agents of the enemy in our midst. Unions have let these men into office, and many of them are still there—waiting, like Germany in her peace proposals, for a better day of war. Such are the ones to watch and denounce. Thousands of loyal unionists are now fighting for us, and in their absence the traitors and mischief makers have found a fine opportunity for attacking the Government and the community. Now that the strike is ended, and normal conditions may be expected before long, the true unionist will take charge of the movement for the sake of wives and children here, but also as in honour bound to fellow-unionists at the front. But the Government must assist in every possible way. Something is being done after long delay in definitely marking aliens as unfit for employment in the industries connected with public utilities. In many cases they ought to be locked up or interned. The rest, since they must work, may be drafted off into occupations where they can do no harm. All the time, too, the loyalist will be in evidence, ready for any emergency, and he certainly cannot be neglected or left to the tender mercies of the militant unionist who is out in the cold, and insists that he has been victimised. As a community we are all concerned in this new birth of unionism; and though there may be no peace, and no real progress in reconstituting it, the great thing will be to give every honest man his due, and every loyal unionist a chance of forcing his union out of the hands of the enemy.

COAL MINERS.

REDRESS OF GRIEVANCES.

TRIBUNALS EXPLAINED.

Speaking on the coal position last night Mr. Fuller said that the tribunals which the Government agreed to appoint to determine whether men had been unfairly excluded from their past employment on coalfields would be established at an early date, and companies received from the different coal districts would be investigated by Industrial Court Judges.

Outside the question of re-employment a great number of complaints relating to small matters have been submitted to the Government. "I find it utterly impossible," said Mr. Fuller, "for the Government to act as a wages board to determine these matters of minor dispute. Mr. Beeby has placed before the three coal-mining districts a proposal that applications should be made for the appointment of conciliation committees under the Industrial Arbitration Act. Every effort is now being made to induce coal miners to adopt the scheme of conciliation which was included in the Government terms of settlement. This scheme is an attempt to bring about some organised control of employees in coal mines which will avoid the hitherto constantly recurring strike on small matters. Mr. Beeby has suggested that each pit in each district should have a conciliation committee consisting of one man elected by the employees of the mine, and one appointed by the Government so long as it continues to control the mine. This committee is to deal with all minor matters in dispute that may arise, and in the event of its being unable to agree on any matter submitted, a chairman to be appointed for each district who will be available at all times as a referee.

"It is thought that these pit committees will be able to settle all the minor matters in dispute that arise in all the different coal mines. Above these committees will be a district committee, consisting of representatives of employees and the management of the mine. This committee will confer on all matters of general district interest, and, in the event of disagreement, will refer any dispute to the Industrial Commissioner for each district. Over and above these district committees it is proposed to establish a coal industrial court for the whole of the State. This court will be constituted of representatives of coal owners and colliery employees, elected according to regulation, and presided over by an Industrial Court Judge. The Coal Court will deal with big matters which cover the whole of the industry, such as rates of pay, hours of employment, and matters of universal interest to the whole industry.

"I urge that colliery employees should fall into line with this proposal, believing that in the end it would give to coal miners infinitely better results than the strike methods of the past three or four years," said the Acting Premier. "It will be clearly provided that during the period of the war the Coal Court in its deliberations shall not prescribe wages or hours of employment less advantageous to the men than those set out in the order made by Mr. Justice Edmunds. In a great number of other industries conciliation committees of this kind can be formed, and as rapidly as possible the Government will attempt to provide for 'round table' conferences between employers and employees, in place of the compulsory arbitration of recent years. The Government is not proceeding with its amending Industrial Bill at present until the position is more clear. There is, however, in the present Act, ample power to establish all forms of conciliatory machinery."

COMPULSORY SERVICE.

PETITION FOR REFERENDUM.

At a meeting recently held in Sydney it was resolved that it was desirable to take public action forthwith to bring before the people a petition for a fresh referendum on overseas compulsory military service. It was decided to call at an early date an inaugural meeting of those in favour of such a petition. The temporary committee points out that the movement has been planned and launched without the approval or otherwise of any political organisation, and without any political interference.

The petition that has been framed is as follows:—

"That your petitioners view with alarm the present very insufficient flow of recruits for the Australian Imperial Force under voluntary enlistment—an insufficiency which puts in peril our gallant fellow-countrymen already at the front, and the performance of our duty to the Empire at large.

"That your petitioners are convinced that only by recourse to a system of overseas compulsory military service can the necessary reinforcements be provided, and our Australian divisions be ensured adequate support and relief. That since the last referendum the situation has changed greatly, for example:—(a) The electorate is now more fully apprised of the facts of the war, and, also, owing to deaths and the coming of age of a large number of new electors, has materially changed; (b) there is good ground for believing that many who voted 'No' at the last referendum would now support overseas compulsory military service on the lines favoured by your petitioners; (c) the United States of America, on its recent entry into the war, promptly enacted a system of overseas compulsory military service within specified ages as the best and fairest method of raising its armies; (d) the Dominion of Canada, following the lead of the United Kingdom, New Zealand, and the United States of America, has also adopted a similar system; (e) Russia's military and political chaos has gravely weakened the allied position—and so an affirmative vote on the question proposed can be expected with much confidence.

"Your petitioners, therefore, humbly petition that by the authority of your honourable Parliament the following question may be submitted by referendum to the electors of the Commonwealth at the earliest possible date:—

"Question.—Are you in favour of the Federal Parliament enacting that all Australian male citizens between the ages of 21 and and 44 (both inclusive) shall be liable during the present war for military service overseas, as well as in Australia, when called up by the Governor-General in Council, subject to the following conditions:—(1) Married men (including widowers with children) not to be liable until the single men (not exempt) have been first called up; married men without children to be liable before married men with children. (2) In the above classes the men to be divided into yearly age groups, and to be called up, as required from time to time, by one or more of such groups—not more than three at a time—beginning with the youngest and then in succession by the next older age groups. (3) Reasonable exemptions (to enable vital industries to be carried on, or to spread the burden of service fairly) to be provided for, including, so long as married men with children are not called up, (a) single men who are sole support of dependants, (b) one-half, or in the case of an uneven number, the minority of the sons of a family where any have already enlisted; but, so that in vital industries men liable for service shall not be exempted as long as other persons not liable at the time to service are available to do their work, and so that no distinction be made between those engaged in Government service and those in non-Government employment.

"And, if the answer is in the affirmative, that the wish of the electors may be given effect to by the necessary legislation."

Mr. John Garland, Solicitor-General, vice Mr. J. W. Spicer, deceased, and Mr. Frederick George Sargood, vice Mr. E. C. V. Broughton, deceased, have been appointed on the board of directors of Sydney Hospital as Government nominees. Mr. Arthur Rickard has been unanimously elected a member of the board as a subscribers' representative.

Mr. W. R. Cowper, manager of the Maitland branch of the Commercial Bank, who is retiring after 40 years' service, was entertained at the Town Hall, West Maitland, on Wednesday afternoon, and was presented with a roll-top desk and easy chair. The Mayor of West Maitland (Alderman J. B. Thompson) presided.

ALIEN RESTRICTION EXEMPTIONS

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Federal aliens restriction order issued in 1915 has been amended by exempting Jews, Arabs, and natives of Bagdad, or any other place in Mesopotamia.

THE SOLDIERS' CLUB.

(BY [illegible])

I enlisted in August of that historic year, 1914. The life of the soldier appealed to me. I revelled in it. But when the day's routine was over, and I sped into the city, that pile of bricks and mortar known as Sydney, it was then that I missed the comforts, both moral and physical, of my country home. I longed for some place where I might go and rest in the company of other soldiers, and in good healthy and wholesome surroundings. Alas! There was no such haven.

* * * * *

For the second time the lamp spluttered and went out, and for the second time I swore. I could not blame the lamp, if I might be pardoned for calling a "bully beef" tin filled with fat, and with a piece of rag hanging from it, by such a dignified name. Yet why was I so annoyed? I must lift the curtain just a little. The scene: A dugout in Gallipoli. Enter the hero (disguised as a soldier): Lights lamp (?)—ditto "fag." Takes newspaper (several months old) from haversack; reads aloud, "'Twofast' wins the 'Hallhage' Stakes, etc., etc." Turns over page, reads again: "Miss Dorothy Twinklefeet causes a sensation at the 'Royterian' Theatre with her patriotic song, 'Why don't you go?'" Turns another page, reads again: "Kid Hardface wins the bout at the Stadium." Mutters to himself: "Doesn't seem to be much here about the soldiers." (Excitedly) "What's this?" "Soldiers' Club!" (Light goes out.) Swears. After several attempts relights the lamp. Goes on reading (sotto voce): "Formed a club for soldiers." Good idea. Should have been started months ago. Wonder if it's as good as they say it is. Must read the whole column: "The club has reading, refreshment, and billiard ——" (Light goes out.) Swears again. Attempts to relight lamp. Loud voice of sergeant-major from outside: "Batte-r-y, action! Numbers one, forward!" Exit the hero.

* * * * *

I left the tram from Randwick Hospital, according to instructions, at Market-street. It was my first time out since my return (minus an arm) to sunny New South Wales, and I was about to visit the institution of which I had read, and of which I expected so much.

So this is it! I enter the wide hall with curiosity. To the left is a notice board, calling my attention to the fact that (1) all soldiers are welcome (I believe that the soldiers from other States make the club their headquarters when in Sydney); and (2) that high tea is served on Sundays. (Note.—I must come along next Sunday.) On the right wall of the entrance is a pitiful record. A board on which are displayed notices asking for news of men who have been reported missing in Egypt, Gallipoli, Mesopotamia, and Flanders. My comrades, as it were, of yesterday. At the extreme end of the entrance hall is an inquiry office, to which I can have my letters addressed, and where I can leave my parcels. (The day is hot, and I part with my great coat with relief.) I mount the stairs to the next floor, and as I approach I can hear the click of billiard balls. Here is another hall. On the right is a door with a notice "Billiards." As I enter someone cries, "Hullo, Mack! You back again?" and the next moment I am busy shaking hands with my greatest soldier friend, my mate of "C" gun team. For an hour we are in Gallipoli and France again, we forget that we are safe home and that Shrapnel Gully, Walker's Ridge, Bapaume, and Pozieres are but memories. I am awakened from my wanderings by a reminder from the inner man, and I grasp the fact that it is several hours since I dined. Incidentally I discover that the Club possesses an excellent refreshment bar. Being somewhat tired from my unwonted exertions, I can highly appreciate the comfort of the luxurious cane lounge chairs with which the club abounds. Newspapers and magazines with which to pass the leisure hour, I find spread in plenty upon the various tables. The presence of other tables generously supplied with notepaper, envelopes, pens, and ink gives birth to the thought that I must write home. At the next table an exciting and novel duel of wits is being fought between two battle-scarred warriors, each having as his weapon a set of chess men. "Ludo" forms the excitement of a group of "new soldiers" on the other side of me. I looked into a room off the passage on the first floor to see a boy polishing a pair of military boots (with a soldier inside them), with an energy that could hardly be excelled by the Arab street urchins who yell out as they approach you, "Clean boots, Meester, no good, no money; fair dinkum shine, half piastre; come on Australia, Ki Wi." On the opposite side of this room, which is a larger one, a barber is having the hunt of his life, in an endeavour to "find the hair" on the chin of a beardless boy soldier who persists in believing that he needs a shave. I have not time to visit the upper floor of the club, but I am informed that the beds which are provided would put many of Sydney's best hotels to the blush in point of whiteness and cleanliness.

As I wend my way once again towards the hospital, I reflect upon my visit. My hopes are justified. The club has exceeded my expectations. At times I have been forced to think that the people for whom we have fought have forgotten us, but now I realise that all have not forgotten; that those kind people who have given their services and those who have given their money to this worthy organisation, "The Soldiers' Club," still have our interests at heart.

* * * * *

For the second time I mount the stairs to "The home of the soldier away from home." My attention is attracted by a large notice, intimating that "a monster bazaar in aid of the Soldiers' Club will be held at the Soldiers' Club, 426 George-street, on Friday, October 19, 1917, from 12 noon to 10 p.m. Admission free." Inquiry reveals the fact that the club is hard up and badly needs money, and unless funds come to hand the good work which it has done and is still doing for "the boys" must lessen and perhaps altogether cease. Institutions of this character cannot carry on without money. The club is solely for the use of those who have fought or are going to fight for you, and by "you" I mean you, the reader of these lines. Would you like to think that, in company with others, by the very act of withholding your help from this good cause, you contributed to the disestablishment of this worthy institution? I voice the sentiments of thousands of my pals when I say "we found comfort and healthy cheerfulness in the Soldiers' Club before we went away, and when we returned, tired and wounded, it was a God-send to have such a pleasant place in which to rest." Now, don't you think you can do your little bit to bring comfort into the lives of the men who have offered and are offering their lives for you?

I would very much like to see such a roll up to this bazaar that the club would not hold all the people who wish to gain admission. If you cannot come along, remember that donations addressed to "The Hon. Secretaries, the Soldiers' Club Bazaar, the Soldiers' Club, Sydney," will be gratefully received and promptly acknowledged.

FIRE ON SHIP.

MAIANBAR DAMAGED.

Shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning an employee of Messrs. Chapman and Co., Ltd., noticed smoke issuing from the hold of the steamer Maianbar, which is berthed at Balmain. He immediately gave the alarm. Detachments from the Balmain, Stanmore, and Rozelle fire brigades extinguished the outbreak.

The loss is estimated approximately at £100.

It is believed that the fire originated through a quantity of coal in the bunkers becoming decomposed and consequently overheated, causing spontaneous combustion.

The Maianbar is owned by the North Coast Steam Navigation Company, and is at present being overhauled and repaired at Messrs. Chapman and Company's slip at Balmain. She was previously engaged in trading between Sydney and the Northern rivers, and is a small steamer of 487 tons.

TIME TO FORGET.

MR. FULLER'S LAST APPEAL.

Mr. Fuller stated last night that he was delighted to hear that the shipping deadlock had practically terminated and that it was now pretty certain that interstate shipping would be resumed. Once interstate vessels commenced to move it would be a matter of a very short space of time when normal conditions would be generally restored.

"Now that the strike is practically over," said the Acting Premier, "the Government will make every possible effort to get industries again into full swing. In some cases some industries for the time being might be working without awards of the Court, but no time will be lost in giving these industries the protection of the Court. The future conditions of industrialists would not be adjusted merely at the will of employers or employees, but in every case proper supervision by the Court of industrial conditions would be maintained.

"I hope," continued Mr. Fuller, "that this is the last appeal I will have to make. I now urge all classes of the community to help the Government to forget what has happened during the last few months, and try to settle down to peaceable working conditions. It will still take a little time to get industries going, and it must be remembered that our financial and economic position is affected more by the war to-day than it was when the strike started. Impatience or mere agitation will do no good. Any further industrial friction will only aggravate the position. Whether we are to struggle through the war on the same standards that existed up to the beginning of the strike, will depend on the mutual effort made by all classes to keep industries going for the next few months without unnecessary bickering or recrimination."

DISTRESS IN SYDNEY.

THE LORD MAYOR'S APPEAL.

TO-DAY'S COLLECTION.

To relieve the distress which exists amongst a large number of women and children, many of whom are suffering through no fault of their own, but owing to their breadwinners being thrown out of employment on account of the strike, a collection will be made throughout the city to-day. The money will go to the Lord Mayor's Distress Relief Fund, and in an appeal Alderman Meagher says that thousands of women and children apply at the Town Hall daily, and it will be impossible to supply the pressing needs unless the flow of contributions is equal to the demand.

There will be stalls at a large number of street corners, but the centre of the day's activities will be Martin-place and Moore-street. Here all sorts of entertainments will be in progress throughout the day, and at night, when the stalls will be brilliantly illuminated with electricity. Various bands and moving concert parties will assist, and raffles will be conducted throughout the city. Stallholders can obtain tickets for the latter at the office of the organisers at Ocean House, Moore-street.

Money from the collectors will be received at the Town Hall, where a special banking staff will be on duty.

About 700 persons were given relief at the Town Hall yesterday. Mr. P. J. Minahan, director of the Lord Mayor's Distress Relief Fund, said yesterday that he desired to make an appeal to the public to help as far as possible the thousands of women and children who depended on the efforts of the Lord Mayor's committee for sustenance. If the public failed them to-day the doors of the depot would have to be closed. The members of the committee could not incur liabilities running into nearly £1000 weekly. The Australians were noted for their generosity towards the poor of other nations, and now that many of our own people were suffering, surely they would not be neglected. He hoped that a splendid response would be given to the appeal made to-day.

THE BELGIAN COLOURS.

A "Briton" writes to express his objection to the display of Belgian colours in and about Martin-place for the collection of money in aid of those in distress through the strike. He considers that the Entente colours in general should be displayed as well as the Belgian, and especially so the British. One would think, he remarks, by this display that it is Belgium's Day, not Strikers' Day.

The returned soldier, V. P. Taylor, better known as "Captain Penfold," will make a balloon ascent from the Sydney Domain at 3 o'clock to-morrow. A collection will be made for the Lord Mayor's Distress Relief Fund.

Mr. Frank Hickey, of Deewhy, has lent his champion bulldog Dally M. to the Lady Mayoress's stall as a collector.

THE PRESENT DISTRESS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. Hall has been very wise in localising the relief to be given in cases of distress through the strike. The only hope of helping the right people and to stop overlapping and imposition is for each suburb to deal with its own cases. The people are mostly known where they live. They go to their own Town Halls.

The city proper, however, does not altogether stand on the same plane as the suburbs. The people do not know each other as they do there. The well-to-do people have generally moved out to the suburbs, and have left the poor behind. Woolloomooloo, Miller's Point, The Rocks, Ultimo, Pyrmont, Surry Hills, parts on both sides of what was Wexford-street, and Chippendale have probably more cases of absolute need just now than all the suburbs put together. I always gladly recognise the splendid services of the Benevolent Asylum, but in this especial time of temporary want people in the city are looking to their Town Hall for help. It is different from the ordinary cases of the poor.

I am confident, therefore, that more should be done for the city by the Government and citizens generally. I believe that the right thing is to aid the Town Hall fund largely. The call of the city, the cry of distress in it, is clear and strong, and it behoves all who are in any way connected with it to give magnanimously and generously on Friday all they possibly can afford.

I am, etc.,
F. B. BOYCE.

WOMEN LOYALISTS.

PROPOSED PERMANENT COMMITTEE.

Mr. Beeby, Minister for Labour and Industry, attended the final meeting of the executive of the Women's Loyal Service Bureau, at the Education-buildings, yesterday, and on behalf of the Government thanked the members for the valuable work done during the strike. One of the most pleasing features of the recent development, said the Minister, was the magnificent response made by by the women when called upon to assist in a time of crisis. Thousands of names were registered by the bureau, but the services of the great majority of applicants were not really required. The Government at all times knew that the women were standing by ready to take up any work that might be assigned to them. In a great number of directions, however, assistance was rendered, and the members of the different volunteer camps are under a deep obligation for the services rendered, which resulted in making their conditions much more comfortable.

"At one stage of the strike," said Mr. Beeby, "the Government did anticipate the necessity of getting the assistance of many more citizens, including women. It was a great relief to know that such assistance was available when required."

The practicability of the bureau becoming a permanent institution, to act in conjunction with the Department of Labour and Industry, in the organisation of female labour, was discussed. Details of a scheme were submitted, and the Minister promised to consider them, and arrange for further consultation with the officers of the Labour Exchange Department.

The ladies who were responsible for the organisation of the bureau were Dr. Mary Booth, Mesdames Liddell, Macarthur-Onslow, Antill, and Misses Preston-Stanley and Macarthur-Onslow.

TOWN PLANNING CONFERENCE.

ADELAIDE, Thursday.

The Melbourne express was laden with delegates to the first Australasian Town Planning Conference, and there was a large attendance when the State Governor declared the Conference and an Ideal Homes Exhibition open.

The Conference will continue until October 24.

WAR NOTES.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

Although conditions on the Flanders front to the eastward of Ypres, must still be far from satisfactory, the recent improvement in the weather, which has been mentioned by correspondents and by Sir Douglas Haig himself, gives rise to expectations of an early renewal of the British attacks along the Passchendaele ridge. The ground must, of course, take a considerable time to dry, but Sir Douglas Haig is not likely to wait for anything approaching reasonably dry conditions. If, as would seem to be the case, his plan provides for the capture of as much of the high ground as possible before the winter. It will, therefore, not be surprising if a move is decided upon almost as soon as the ground is sufficiently improved to present no insuperable difficulties to the attackers. Those who are on the spot and who have the experience of the last two attacks to guide them, are best able to arrive at a decision in this respect. Up to the present Sir Douglas Haig gives no indication of any renewal of the offensive, and the most noticeable feature of his communiques is their brevity, but the fact that he has "nothing of interest to report" has not always been an indication that he has nothing important in view. His reference to the British air raid on Saarbrucken, in Lorraine, is interesting, as the affair represents something approaching a reprisal, but possessing a definite military objective.

BRITISH OFFICERS' CASUALTIES.

The figures relating to casualties among British officers, and published by the War Office, are too meagre to permit of any definite conclusions being drawn from them as to the extent of casualties generally in the rank and file of the British armies. It is not to be expected that the War Office would disclose information which would enable the enemy to make any such deductions. One definite fact which is revealed by these figures, however, is that the opening month of the Somme offensive was the most costly period yet experienced as far as officers were concerned. There is no reason to suppose that the British officers are not taking as many risks as they did during the Somme fighting, or that their losses are fewer in proportion to those sustained by their men. We may take it, therefore, that the general casualties amongst the British troops in August and September, 1917, would offer much the same favourable comparison with the casualties of July, 1916, as the figures relating to officers do. If this assumption is correct, it bears out the statements which have repeatedly been made in official and unofficial circles during most of the fighting of the present year that the British losses have been light compared with the nature of the gains secured. The months of August and September last were marked by some heavy fighting in Flanders and around Lens, and it was during the latter month that the enemy's new defensive tactics were put to the real test. The big difference between average daily casualties sustained by British officers in these two months and the average daily casualties in the month of July, 1916, suggests that the British offensive methods have been much improved since the days of the Somme offensive. While these casualties include cases of the slightest injury, the figures nevertheless serve to remind us of the task which England had to accomplish in order to provide and maintain efficient officers for the remarkable fighting force which has come into existence since the outbreak of war.

GERMANY'S LATEST SUCCESS.

The later news from Russia regarding the position on Oesel Island merely confirms the suggestions, contained in the earlier messages of the hopelessness of the position in which the few Russian troops remaining on the island were situated. The enemy has now achieved his immediate objective and has entirely overcome the Russian resistance. Besides securing a fair haul of prisoners and military material, he has firmly established himself in a position from which the Russians will not be able forcibly to eject him for some time to come. It will not be surprising if he has come to stay for the period of the war, and he may even have intentions of staying still longer. The advantages which he will derive from this latest success will be many and far-reaching. Even if he does not intend to use the island as a point of concentration for a more ambitious future move against Russia by way of the province of Esthonia, his presence here will be felt in more ways than one. In the first place it will give him almost complete control in the Gulf of Riga, where, according to his own communique, his warships are already moving with a freedom of action which suggests that he is rapidly clearing these waters of mines and obstructions previously placed there by the Russian navy. But the occupation also strengthens his naval position generally in the Baltic, and if he eventually secures possession of Dago Island, and gains control of the narrow waters between these islands and the mainland, the Russian fleet will be thrown almost completely upon the defensive, with little or no scope for movement outside the Gulf of Finland. He will also possess in Oesel Island a suitable base for aerial as well as naval operations against points of military importance on Russian territory. Already his airmen have bombed Pernau, a coastal railhead on the mainland, at the head of a small gulf of the same name, situated at the north-eastern side of the Gulf of Riga. It should not be long before Hapsal, and the naval base of Revel, as well as other Russian towns on the mainland, experience similar raids.

PEACE MOVES IN SWITZERLAND.

The attempt by certain Swiss Catholics to convene an international peace congress for October 15, mentioned in the Berne message yesterday, is not the first move in this direction to end in failure. The French Catholic paper "La Croix" announced on June 1 last that on May 18 a reunion of Swiss Catholics was summoned at Olten by Herr Erzberger, who had obtained the assistance of the Swiss Catholics in order to approach the bishops of Entente countries with a view to creating a movement in favour of peace. A professor of international law at Lausanne had been charged to sound the French Catholics, and even some of their bishops. Other Swiss Catholics made efforts to approach the Italian bishops. Herr Erzberger is said to have informed his most trusted friends that Germany was at the end of her resources, and that it was necessary for her to make peace as soon as possible. To others he pretended to be influenced by the desire to see the Catholics forestall the Socialists. The reply of the French left no doubt as to their attitude towards the movement. This reply was forwarded by Monseigneur Baudrillart, director of the Catholic Committee of French Propaganda Abroad, and read as follows:—"(1) It is quite right that the spiritual authority which is above all nations, and is not a belligerent, and presides over the government of the Catholic Church, should exercise an influence in favour of peace and justice among the nations. That is one of the reasons why a country which is not represented at the Vatican is at a disadvantage. (2) It is not the right of the Catholics of any nation, any more than of the Socialists or members of any other party, to enter into direct or indirect relations with an enemy, still less to substitute themselves for the government created by law in order to discuss in some sort of international meeting the cessation of hostilities and conditions of peace. (3) If the Catholics of the Entente, like those of the rest of the world, desire peace, they can each in their own country make their voices heard on this subject; they have also, and, thanks be to God, they are carrying it out—the duty, which was recalled to them recently by Cardinal Mercier, to insist on the re-establishment of violated right, on the punishment of the guilty, and on the employment of proper means for rendering impossible a repetition of similar crimes." "Any other attitude," added "La Croix," "which either Catholics or Socialists might take up would constitute a usurpation of the rights of the State."

AIR RAIDS.

BRITISH OVER GERMANY.

FACTORY BOMBED.

LONDON, Oct. 18.

Sir Douglas Haig reported on Wednesday: British aeroplanes carried out a very successful raid this afternoon in German territory, and attacked a factory westward of Saarbrucken, 40 miles beyond the German frontier. We dropped many bombs with good effect, and fires broke out in the factory. All our machines returned.

Many bombs were dropped yesterday on billets and trenches. We brought down three German machines. One of ours is missing.

The Admiralty announces: Our aviators on Monday night dropped many tons of bombs on Bruges docks. One of our fighter patrols on Tuesday brought down an enemy two-seater in the vicinity of Zarren. The observer fell out, and the machine fell in flames. All our machines returned.

An Admiralty report at midnight on Wednesday stated: Naval aircraft carried out patrols yesterday, and encountered several enemy formations. One enemy seaplane was brought down, and two other hostile aircraft probably destroyed.

A French communique issued on Wednesday evening stated: Enemy aeroplanes violently bombarded Nancy. Ten civilians were killed and 40 injured.

Five enemy aeroplanes were destroyed on Tuesday, and on Monday 20 others fell out of control in their own lines.

Our aeroplanes heavily bombed military establishments in Volkslingen, railway stations in Thionville, Mezieres-les-Metz, and Metzwoippy, and factories in Hagondange and Rombach.

ESSEN BOMBED.

A Paris message says: A French aviator named Jardin, participating in a raid on Frankfort, proceeded to Essen on his own initiative and dropped ten bombs. He landed in Switzerland in a mist and was interned.

GERMANS FEAR REPRISALS.

A Zurich message says several German newspapers significantly doubt the wisdom of air-raids on open towns. The "Reich post" urgently demands an agreement of all belligerents to desist from the practice, which only hardens the war spirit of the victims.

LULL IN WEST.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY.

Sir Douglas Haig on Wednesday night reported considerable activity on the part of hostile artillery, north-eastward of Ypres, and in the coast sector. The activity of our artillery on the battlefront continues.

Sir Douglas Haig, in his noon report on Wednesday stated: There is nothing of interest to report.

A French communique on Wednesday afternoon reported lively artillery actions, particularly in the region of the Plateau d'Allies, and on the right of the Meuse.

BRITISH CASUALTIES.

The War Office, in reply to a Swedish newspaper's allegation that the casualties among British officers averaged 511 daily in August, declares that they averaged 183 daily in August and 166 in September. The highest daily average was 282, in July, 1916.

The above figures, it is explained, include cases of the slightest injury.

BID FOR PEACE.

ALSACE-LORRAINE.

REPORTED GERMAN OFFER.

Paris advices state that the Chamber of Deputies decided to hold a secret session to discuss M. Ribot's recent statement that Germany had hinted at her preparedness to restore Alsace-Lorraine if France consented to discuss peace.

At the secret session of the Chamber of Deputies a vote of confidence in the Premier, M. Painleve, was carried unanimously. The Socialist deputies abstained from voting.

Replying to Germany's denial that she gave France to understand negotiations might be opened for the restitution of Alsace-Lorraine, the Paris "Matin" states that a diplomatic document, bearing the authority of the Emperor's and Chancellor's signatures, asked France to begin negotiations in Switzerland. Germany had also approached England, through a neutral power, with the object of securing a separate peace. She offered an entirely satisfactory settlement of the Belgian question, and had asked Russia to stipulate her demands, indicating that France and England would negotiate for a separate peace.

VIENNA VIEWS.

An Amsterdam report says that Vienna newspapers state that peace efforts have ended owing to the declarations of Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Asquith, and M. Ribot.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS.

Wireless reports received in Zurich show that the German Majority Socialists completely threw off the mask at the Wurzburg Conference. Herr Greuz assailed the minority Socialists' references to the "so-called violence" in Belgium. Herr Muller, a member of the executive, denied that the rights of the Nationalists were practicable, stating that the principle would only be attainable when Germany was crushed. Insistence on nationalism, he said, merely prolonged the war.

Herr David, one of the most prominent Socialists, roundly denied that Germany was responsible for the war, and said that the Socialists must support the Government. Democracy was impracticable in Germany. The Entente leaders prolonged the war in hoping that Germany would adopt a democratic Government. Herr David defended the Emperor, but appealed to him to secure Ministers acceptable to the people.

MESOPOTAMIA.

A British official message from Mesopotamia states: Our aeroplanes bombed an aerodrome in Kifri, causing much damage. One machine which was forced to land was burnt up. The occupants were rescued.

THE AUSTRALIANS.

HARDEST JOB YET.

(FROM MR. GORDON GILMOUR, SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE AUSTRALIAN AND NEW ZEALAND PRESS ASSOCIATION ON THE WESTERN FRONT.)

LONDON, Oct. 17.

A sudden change to good weather occurred on Sunday and Monday. Interviewing men who were engaged in last week's battles, I found all units had shared in casualties almost equally. One or two battalions had the bad luck to strike an unusually hot fire from strong points which had survived our barrage, and were not immediately silenced by the advancing troops. These strong points interfered with the punctual carrying out of the schedule. While the rest of the Australians were advancing, some isolated parties found themselves enfiladed. No soldiers are happy while being sniped from the rear, but the situation was quickly remedied.

The fighting on the south side of the Roulers railway on Friday was of a highly successful nature. The objectives were reached in the prescribed time, with the assistance of the Lewis gunners, who poured a storm of bullets into the Germans, who were lined up at the railway cutting. The enemy, however, was able to launch several local counter-attacks in the afternoon, driving back the Australian outposts on the main body. The Germans came on in two waves. A Western Australian corporal used every bullet in one pannier of a Lewis gun before the first wave was cut up. Another came on in good formation and finally we put a marshy hollow between ourselves and the enemy.

The Queenslanders and Tasmanians who are holding this sector with a sprinkling of Western Australians and South Australians saw shellfire heavier than at Bullecourt, but less intensity of machine-gun fire. The general impression regarding the past week's stunt is that it was the hardest the Australians and New Zealanders ever assisted in. There was only a little bayonet fighting. This occurred on the high ground near the railway where the Germans thought they could drive us out. They soon found their mistake.

Considerable regret is felt for one unit, which took a pride in itself—a party of six Tasmanians and three Queenslanders—who made a specialty of scouting, of whom seven had won the Military Medal. Four shells landed amid the party, killing five and wounding two.

Many incidents of supreme courage have come to light, one being the case of a South Australian corporal, who pleaded for permission to take a small party of volunteers to settle some snipers. His officer twice refused, as it looked like certain death, but finally he consented. The corporal and four men silenced three audacious snipers, but the corporal alone returned. He was twice wounded. Another man carried a wounded officer a mile and a half through mud, regardless of bullets. When all their officers had been knocked out in certain units, the noncoms stepped into the breach with great gallantry and resource.

ENEMY WITHDRAWAL.

Apropos of Mr. Bean's despatch, Mr. Percival Phillips notes that the enemy has further withdrawn his line below Broodseinde, where our outposts forced him to leave nearly all the wood on the slope eastward of Nordemdhoek, and establish a new lower line round it.

The German troops are depending on what food they can carry to the front line. Communications are bad, and the men are warned not to expect regular rations.

GERMAN'S SAVAGE ACT.

A sergeant in the Lincolnshire regiment narrates the following incident: While lying wounded in a shallow trench I saw a German approach an English lad who was lying badly hit in the leg and unable to move. The German deliberately bayoneted him in the body as he lay there. A young Lincolnshire sergeant-major was near by. I shall never forget his expression of horror and loathing. With a shout of rage he dropped his rifle and sprang at the Hun. Before the German realised what was happening the Englishman had him by the throat, choked the life out of him, and flung the body away.

STORIES OF HEROISM.

Thursday morning's papers contain particulars of the awarding of nine Victoria Crosses. Included among the recipients are Sergeant Hobson, a Canadian, who was near a Lewis gun which was buried by a shell, the crew being killed, with one exception. Hobson was not a gunner, but he rushed up and dug out the gun and got it in action against the Germans, when a jam caused the gun to stop. Hobson, though wounded, handed over the gun to the remaining gunner and himself rushed forward and fought the enemy with bayonet and clubbed rifle single-handed until he was killed. Meanwhile the Lewis gun was repaired, the enemy beaten off, and a serious situation saved.

Sergeant Moyney and Private Woodcock, of the Irish Guards, were included in a party of fifteen men cut off for ninety-six hours. They were waterless and foodless, but when a large party of the enemy came up on the fifth day Moyney led the men in a charge through the enemy, and reached the river. He ordered the rest to cross while he himself and Woodcock covered the retirement safely and brought the entire force out of action. Later Woodcock heard cries behind him. He waded back, amid a shower of bombs, and rescued a wounded British soldier, whom he carried across the stream and over open ground in the broad daylight, and despite the fire of the machine-guns.

Military medals have been awarded to six nursing sisters for conspicuous gallantry, displayed on the occasion of the hostile air raids on casualty clearing stations, including Sister Alicia Mary Kelly and Sister Rachel Pratt, both Australians.

KILLED IN ACTION.

Captain R. S. Adams, Royal Field Artillery, a New Zealander, has been killed in action.

Dennis, the only son of Lord Buxton, a second-lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards, is missing, and is believed to have been killed.

AUSTRALIAN'S ESCAPE.

Captain John Eldrene Mott, an Australian, who escaped from Germany, has arrived in London. He hid in sewers and bushes, and swam rivers in the course of a hundred-mile journey to safety, which took six days.

KING GIVES £10,000.

The King, in a message to Our Day Fund committee, said he trusted there would be no falling off in the generous support of everyone at home and in the Dominions. His Majesty contributed £10,000, the Queen £1000, and the Prince of Wales £3000. The American Red Cross has contributed £200,000.

AUSTRALIAN MEMORIAL.

A Cairo message says the Australians in Egypt propose to erect a memorial to their comrades who have fallen in Sinai and Palestine. Every Australian at Cairo subscribed 5s. The memorial probably will consist of a broken column on the banks of the Suez Canal. The New Zealanders are planning a similar memorial at Birelabd, where many of their comrades fell in the battle of Romani.

AMERICANS IN FRANCE.

A Paris message says Marshal Joffre and General Pershing reviewed the first American division in France.

RUSSIA.

GERMANY'S BALTIC SUCCESS.

OESEL ISLAND LOST.

LONDON, Oct. 17.

A Russian official message on Wednesday afternoon stated: The enemy pressed us back over the mole in the direction of Moon Island, interrupting the land communications between Oesel Island and Moon Island. We have completely lost touch with our forces on Oesel Island.

Eye witnesses report that an enemy dreadnought ran into a mine field on Friday. After an explosion the warship proceeded to the coast. Its ultimate fate is unknown.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

A German official message on Wednesday afternoon stated: We overcame resistance on Sworbe peninsula, and have full possession of Oesel Island. Yesterday's prisoners number 1100.

Naval encounters north of Oesel Island, and also in the Gulf of Riga, resulted in our favour.

ALEXIEFF'S WARNING.

JAPAN'S ENTRY PREDICTED.

The "Morning Post's" correspondent at Petrograd states that General Alexieff, in a remarkable interview, said he would not attend the Allied military conference at Paris unless he was enabled to speak on behalf of the fighting army. The war was a struggle of the Germanic and Anglo-Saxon races. The Russians were only lay figures. England would never end the war without victory, and the utter exhaustion of Germany. America's entry had decided the issue independently of Russia, whose weakness merely postponed victory.

"If Russia does pull herself together, and put forward a real fighting army," he added, "the issue for her will be lamentable. I think, if, at the conference, our utter feebleness is disclosed, Japan must enter upon the Russian stage of this European war. She will require compensation, and, naturally, the weakest must pay."

ANARCHY AND POGROMS.

Petrograd advices state that the Constituent Assembly elections will be held on November 25. The Assembly will meet on December 13. The election campaign is beginning.

Anarchy is spreading in Russia. There have been Jewish Pogroms at Kharkoff and Tamboff, and agrarian riots, looting, murder, and food riots have occurred in many towns. Bands of soldiers are marauding at various points behind the fighting line and in the interior.

There is additional confusion owing to the Bolsheviks insisting on summoning an all-Russian congress of the Soviets on November 2, with the object of overthrowing the Government and placing the power in the Soviets' hands.

GERMAN WARSHIPS.

MOVEMENT IN BALTIC.

A Stockholm message says: Large flotillas of German destroyers, also huge submarines, are reported in the Sound, heading southwards. There were never so many German warships seen at one time.

Four destroyers narrowly escaped running ashore at Limhamn.

ITALIAN VICTIMS.

For the week ending Sunday last, 315 ships arrived in Italian ports, and 328 departed. Four steamers under 1500 tons were lost.

One mailboat and one sailing ship were unsuccessfully attacked.

NORWEGIAN SHIPS SUNK.

Advices from Christiania state that the Themis (7402 tons), the largest Norwegian steamer, has been torpedoed in the Mediterranean.

The sailing vessel Bethel has been sunk in the North Sea. The crews of both vessels are missing.

CONSTANTINE'S REVENGE.

An Athens message says the sinking by a submarine of the Italian mail steamer Citta Di Bari, in which 200 Greeks perished, including consular officials returning from Turkey, via Switzerland, is universally believed to have been ordered by ex-King Constantine as revenge for his dethronement.

AMERICA'S OUTPUT.

A New York report says additional shipping amounting to a million tons, will be available from the marine shipyards next March. This includes shipping which is being built for Britain and neutrals. Officials interpret the latest reports to mean that Germany intends to declare ruthless submarine war on both the United States and Canadian shipping.

FRANCE.

FRESH CABINET CRISIS.

LONDON, Oct. 18.

A Paris report says there is a fresh Cabinet crisis over the Malvy affair. The Government succeeded by a majority of 57, after an excited discussion, in securing a postponement of the debate. It is considered certain that M. Painleve must reconstruct the Ministry, probably including Socialists in the Cabinet.

[M. Malvy, ex-Minister of the Interior, was recently accused by M. Leon Daudet of selling the plans of the Chemin-des-Dames offensive to the enemy, the allegation causing great scandal. He refuted the accusation.]

NEW ZEALAND INVENTION.

A Washington message says the Invention Board experts have reported favourably on a New Zealand inventor of a new gas-producing carburettor, which is now being tested, and is applicable to aeroplane engines. It is hoped it will materially increase the flying range. Mr. R. R. Godwild, the inventor, a New Zealander, and Mr. H. G. Armstrong, of Sydney, have offered the invention to the Government without remuneration.

AMERICA'S WAR BILL.

HUGE EXPENDITURE.

A Washington message states that since July 10 the United States have spent £584,200,000, half of which has been advanced to the Allies.

This is an expenditure of £180,000,000 more than receipts, including the Liberty Loan.

According to latest advices subscriptions to the Liberty Loan have reached a billion dollars (£200,000,000).

GERMAN EMPEROR.

An Amsterdam message says the German Emperor has arrived at Constantinople. He will shortly inspect the Dardanelles defences.

The Amsterdam correspondent of the "Express" says the German Emperor's sudden rush to Sofia and Constantinople is due to information that the Bulgars and Turks can hardly stand another winter of war. The Emperor hopes to be able to revive their faith in Germany's cause.

MEMORIAL PLAQUES.

The Press Bureau announces that the competition for designs for a memorial plaque for the next-of-kin of soldiers killed in action closes at the end of 1917. This will enable members of the forces serving oversea, and artists resident in the Dominions, to participate.

FOOD CONTROL.

At the National Conference of co-operative societies in London, the chairman, in his address, complained that the Government had played with food control for nearly a year. It gave business men a share in the Government while it quietly ignored consumers' interests, with the result of preserving inviolate the profits of a class which had fleeced the people from time immemorial.

The conference passed a resolution protesting against the refusal of Mr. Lloyd George to recognise the usefulness of the co-operative movement in the present crisis.

The conference also decided to organise its political power to the full extent.

SWEDISH CABINET.

The "Daily Telegraph's" Copenhagen correspondent says the "Social Democraten" states that Professor Eden has formed a Ministry of six Liberals and three Socialists, including Herr Branting, as Finance Minister.

DISMISSED THE SERVICE.

A court-martial has dismissed Captain C. E. Wyett, of the New Zealand Dental Corps.

PRESIDENT OF PORTUGAL.

Dr. Machado, the Portuguese President, has arrived from the Western front. He is on an unofficial visit to England.

TIMBER TRADE.

A large and representative meeting of members of the timber trade passed a resolution urging the Government to permit unrestricted importation as far as tonnage allowed, also adding that the trade would strenuously resist the State purchasing and dealing in timber after the war.

DIVORCE IN ENGLAND.

There are 700 cases awaiting hearing in the Divorce Court. Extra Judges have been appointed.

SWEDISH DESPATCHES.

A New York message says the detention of the Swedish despatches at Halifax by the British authorities is developing to an important issue. The Swedish Minister has asked Sweden to endeavour to secure the release of the despatches.

STATE SESSION.

At a meeting of the Ministerial party, held at Parliament House yesterday, it was definitely decided that an effort should be made to bring the session to a conclusion at the end of next week. Some Ministers think the sittings are quite likely to extend into the week after next.

The only important item of legislation which it is proposed to leave over is the new Industrial Bill. This will not be introduced before the Christmas recess, nor until industrial conditions generally have got back to normal. Mr. Beeby, who has charge of the bill, left Sydney last night for Melbourne to attend a conference in connection with the aftermath of the strike, as far as it concerns the general body of waterside workers. He was confident that this conference would finally settle all the remaining issues of the strike.

It is proposed merely to prorogue both Houses of Parliament over the Christmas and New Year seasons. They will then be called together again for the purpose of dealing exclusively with the new Arbitration Bill. That being got out of the road, Parliament will be adjourned for the usual lengthy recess, until the early autumn of next year.

In the meantime a very important conference of representatives of the various State Governments and the Commonwealth Ministry will be held in Melbourne, in order to consider the industrial situation throughout the Commonwealth. It is extremely likely that at this conference the question of the cession of industrial powers to the Commonwealth Government will be definitely decided. The suggestion will be made to the conference that the Commonwealth should have a general supervision of the whole of the industrial conditions, governed by a supreme industrial court of at least three Federal Judges. To each of the States, however, it will be proposed that complete autonomy will be granted in the matter of conciliatory machinery for the settlement of industrial grievances, and for the hearing of plaints which affect only the industrial life of an individual State.

AUSTRALIANS HONOURED.

Mr. A. L. Hinton has been notified by cable that his son, Captain Frederic Brock Hinton, M.C., officer commanding a machine-gun company, has been promoted to the rank of major. Major Hinton, who was formerly stock assistant at the Hawkesbury Agricultural College, enlisted as a private in the first week of the war. He went through the Gallipoli campaign, and afterwards served in France, receiving the Military Cross for conspicuous gallantry at Pozieres. He has just attained his 25th year.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Webb, of Yeovil, Lindsay-street, Burwood, have received word that their son, Corporal Clive Thompson Webb, now serving in France, has been awarded the Military Medal.

MEAT PRICES.

Mr. A. B. Piddington, K.C., Chief Interstate Commissioner, yesterday continued his inquiry into the prices of meat in Sydney and suburbs.

Thomas Waddell, M.L.C., grazier, of Fort Bourke, said that the fact of population constantly increasing, and stock not increasing proportionately, was a factor of high prices. While population increased stock supplies decreased. Droughts had been frequent and, with rabbits and the increase of wild dogs, had caused serious losses, and had created a disposition on the part of owners to keep as much stock as possible for stocking up.

Arthur Sydney Jones, Minister's secretary, Attorney-General's Department, produced the documents connected with the proclamation of prices. On August 13 a proclamation fixed wholesale and retail prices as at August 1 to operate until August 20, and then fall 2d per lb. The Acting Premier, however, granted permission for the higher prices to prevail for about a week longer. On September 29 the chairman of the Metropolitan Meat Industry Board notified the Attorney-General that the buyers had informed the agents that unless the higher prices were allowed to continue prices for cattle would fall £3 to £3 per head, to which the agents replied that in such an event the supplies would not be forward. Mr. King also stated that the carcase butchers were still charging the higher prices. The Attorney-General, after an interview with Messrs. Field and Ashcroft, agreed, on October 5, that the prices of August 18 might continue until October 10.

The Commissioner said it appeared that between August 27, when the Acting Premier's concession expired, and October 5, when the Attorney-General renewed it, there was no announcement by any Minister that the proclaimed price for wholesale meat might be exceeded without a prosecution. For a month they had been making a charge that was absolutely illegal.

William Payne, retail butcher, and vice-president of the City and Suburban Cash Butchers' Association, said the retail trade was not at all reasonably profitable at present prices. In October, 1914, the wholesale price for picked bodies of beef was 3½d per lb; for carcases of mutton 3¼d to 3½d; the corresponding prices on July 30, 1917, were, beef 6½d per lb, mutton 5½d per lb. He had no difficulty in obtaining supplies in normal times.

Ernest Kleemo, master butcher, Manly, said that when the Government created the committee of carcase butchers in the recent strike they acquired the key to the position; they fixed the price, and the retailers had to submit. A meeting of 400 to 500 master butchers formed a defence committee. A price was agreed upon on the Saturday, but on Monday it was increased. Protests were unsuccessful, and at a conference to consider the matter Mr. Cramsie made the statement: "I am the representative of the stock-owners, and unless, in my opinion, the stock-owners get what I consider a fair price for their stock I will advise them to hold all stock back from Homebush Saleyards." This was said in the presence of the full committee of the pool and the retail butchers. Prices from the start had been on a level until the past week. After strike slaughtering ceased at Manly he had been getting his meat from the Sydney side, and the prices had been raised slightly. He did not know the reason. He was satisfied he had been charged unnecessarily high prices, and the quality of the meat had not been satisfactory. He had protested against the wholesale price not dropping in accordance with the proclamation. "I feel," continued the witness, "that we have been exploited as well as being unfairly dealt with."

The commission adjourned until this morning.

DISTRICT NURSING ASSOCIATION.

At the annual meeting of the District Nursing Association, which was held in St. James's Hall yesterday afternoon, Dr. Clubbe in the chair, Mr. Dugald Thomson said that the institution did not receive sufficient support from the commercial houses of the city. He suggested that a circular should be issued to all business people appealing for subscriptions. He was willing to contribute 20 guineas and hoped other contributions would be received.

Mr. David Storey (Acting Minister for Health) said the District Nursing Association met a want that hospitals could not fill, and the nurses who attended in the houses of the poor deserved a great deal of credit because they rendered service under circumstances that money could not repay. The Government was pretty hard-up, but the claims of the D.N.A. would be considered with others when the allocation of public moneys was being made.

The treasurer's report stated that the total expenditure was £1244, and the receipts £1202, a shortage of £42.

Dr. Clubbe commended the work of the association to the public. Each person interested, he said, should endeavour to induce ten friends to give guineas each. If 100 persons did that the funds would benefit to the extent of £1000.

The following office-bearers were elected:—Patroness, Her Excellency Lady Helen Munro Ferguson; vice-presidents, Lady Fairfax, Miss Dibbs, Mrs. Philip Street, Mrs. Moseley; chairman of executives, Dr. Litchfield; hon. treasurer, Miss Bedford; hon. secretary, Mrs. E. A. Antill; general committee, Dr. C. B. Blackburn, Canon Charlton, Dr. Clubbe, Dr. Griffiths, Mr. W. P. FIRST BATTALION REUNION.

By way of celebrating the departure of the First Battalion three years ago there was a reunion yesterday afternoon at the George-street depot of the 1st and 53rd Battalions Comforts Fund. Arranged by the honorary secretary, Mrs. Glanville, the gathering included nearly 100 returned men who had served with "the gallant First." Speeches were made by Major Dawson, Lieut. Rickwood, and Captain Lloyd. It was stated during the proceedings that the boys of the 1st Battalion had largely helped in the formation of the 53rd.

In the evening the reunion was continued with a well-attended musical and dramatic entertainment at the Repertory Theatre, in aid of the 1st and 53rd Battalions Comforts Fund. The Misses Zita Watkins, Kathleen Shearer, Muriel Barlow, Minnie Boladjeff, E. Davis, Kathleen Austin, and Mr. Stanley Rowe were the musical contributors to the programme. The Walter Bentley Players (including the Misses E. Davis, E. Blackwell, J. Anderson, E. Living, and Jordan), provided three dramatic sketches, "Edith's Burglar," "Search Me," and "The Tables Turned." Speaking from the stage during the interval Lieut. Rickwood reminded those with short memories that a large number of men of the original First Battalion had been killed in action or who died of wounds. The lieutenant at the close of his speech had an enthusiastic response to his call, "Now then, ladies and gentlemen, soldiers and civilians, join me in giving three cheers for the boys of the 1st and the 53rd battalions who are fighting and winning at the front."

PRISONERS.

TREATMENT OF AUSTRALIANS.

DELIBERATE STARVATION.

(BY C. E. W. BEAN, OFFICIAL WAR CORRESPONDENT.)

(COPYRIGHT RESERVED BY THE CROWN.)

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, May 27.

There have arrived back from the German lines across many lines of German trenches two Australians who were captured in the Hindenburg line after the brave attack of April 11. That unparalleled adventure of infantry against unbroken wire without artillery came near success, when it failed.

The Germans captured nearly 1000 Australians cut off by their machine guns. They have chosen in their wisdom to treat these Australians to intentional "punishment." They are similarly "punishing" British troops. They have these Australians completely at their mercy for the time being. They can starve and ill-treat them as much as they like. One can only thank Providence that Australians have a long, long memory, and that Germans may regret for centuries the months when they did their will upon these 1000 men.

They were wheeled up a village street into the yard of a big house. They were given a loaf of bread to every five, and coffee was brought in, but few had anything but their helmets to drink out of, and so most had none. They sat in the snow wet through till they were turned into a big church. Neither this night nor any other night afterwards were they given a single blanket so far as the escaped men know.

Seven hundred and fifty-six Australians from all States of the Commonwealth were marched off into German territory, and it was from this time that the deliberate German policy towards them began to appear. On this their second day and it was from this time that the deliberate German policy towards them began to appear. On this their second day after capture they were given a loaf of bread between four men and some coffee. They were not told that this was their whole day's ration, but as it was the bread had been too sour for some of them the first day they were glad to eat it the next. The road was slushy after snow. They passed a gang of men scraping the mud off it. At a siding they were put into cattle trucks, which were presently hitched up and jolted along until after dark. They then detrained, and were marched into certain village cellars at a big house. Early next day some hundred were picked from them for examination, and these were given a good feed. The rest set out on a new day's march, after being given a third of a loaf and a cup of coffee. This time they were told that it was the day's supply.

They were pinched with hunger by this time and possibly the villagers on their route could see it. "The French would give you anything they had," one of the men said. A little girl ran out from a cottage with bread. The guard smacked her in the face. The bread they used to throw into the gutter. A Frenchman tried to give the Australians a bucket of water to drink; the guard upset the water and threw the pail at the man. A woman tried to give them bread and a Prussian soldier hit her in the face and knocked her down. Two days later they were moved by train to Lille. Through the chinks in the big cattle trucks they could see it was a big railway station they were moved into. Then the truck doors opened and they found themselves on the platform.

They swung out of the city and up to an old green fort. There was two-storey brickwork inside, but grass covered the roof and ramparts at the gate. The Australians were divided off into parties of 110 in each, and each of these was marched into a separate room in the upper storey. The black hole of Lille. For five nights and six days a hundred and ten Australians lived in a room where the escaped men were. It is the first time in our country's history that they have ever suffered organised torture. The room was about 50ft by 20ft, and the floor was tiled. For a few minutes each day the men were allowed into the yard for exercise. Their only convenience for all sanitary purposes was one barrel which stood in a corner uncovered. The windows had to be shut for they slept on the tiled floor without a blanket, though snow fell at night, and their food was too little to keep life together. They were given one-seventh of a loaf of bread—that is one slice per man—with some fermented marigolds each day, with one cup of coffee at night and one at morning. When the man who took the barrel each day down the stairs to clean it asked for a glass of water the guard would not allow it. The cook refused a mark offered for a little bread. They were not once allowed to wash until the last day, when they cleaned up to leave.

On the sixth day 240 of the Australians were sent by train to work on a dump close behind the front. Lord knows what happened to the rest or where they are now. This double company of Australians was put in a farm near a double company of English and Scottish troops and set to work unloading stores from a broad gauge railway on to a dump. The work was in two shifts, the Australian company in the morning and the British in the evening.

LIVING ON GRASS.

The result was that these Australians were driven to beg to their guards to let them cut any sort of grass that could be eaten, dandelions, stinging nettles and rape, such as we feed sheep on. They picked up potato peelings which the Germans threw out. "Potato peelings was my strong suit," one of the Western Australians told me "until the mob took to it and ran out on this stuff." The men became so weak that at the time these men left they were falling ill at the rate of over four a day. There was no such thing as light duties for sick men. The men were worked until they had to be sent to hospital. One day on their way to work they noticed stains of blood up the road. A smashed field gun—that was some consolation—they noticed the direction from which the shells of that big gun came, and laid their plans. It was difficult. But one night the two got clear. The escaped Australians found their way easily. They cut rapidly through the night along the circuit they had planned. Only once away on the flank they heard a party of Germans. Shortly before day there was the flash of a man lighting his pipe near by, and the sound of horses, and they lay up behind a hedge, an action had suddenly burst out ahead of them. German batteries were belting into the dawn, and down from the skies came a British barrage, the edge of it not so far away. They ate their last crust as they lay there.

They almost tumbled into a sap full of Germans, swerved across it, crawled through an unrecognisable desolation which was a road, and up a bank, when there was a flash; it came from thirty yards ahead. Flares were going up all around them. They were fast losing all idea of their whereabouts. They were ravenous with hunger and thirst. However, in a small shellhole they hit on a German water bottle full of weak coffee. They drank it. "We will have death or bacon for breakfast," said the elder. They crawled on ten yards, there was another flash, and the leader was hit through the shoulder. There seemed only one thing remaining—to go on another thirty yards and then lie up in a shellhole till they had enough daylight to see. The leading man crawled ten yards, when there was a clear "Halt." The tone was unmistakable. The leading man put his head up. "Are you British?" he asked. "Yes," came the answer. The leader did not wait for ceremony. "Come Stewie," he said to his mate, "we are home and dry," and ran without his hands up and in his French civilian cloth cap straight into the trench. It was the biggest risk of the lot, but within half an hour he was having his bacon for breakfast, with margarine and the beloved jam and a tot of rum.

GLOUCESTER ELECTORATE.

Immediate steps are being taken by the National Association in connection with the contest for the Gloucester Electorate. Nominations are being invited to close with the general secretary, Mr. Archdale Parker, tomorrow, at 11 a.m. These nominations will be considered by the executive, and a selection finally made in consultation with the local supporters at a meeting which will take place in the Belmore Hall, Taree, on Monday night next, at 8 o'clock. The views of the executive will be placed before that meeting by a member of the Cabinet and the general secretary.

SOLDIERS' CLUB BAZAAR.

A bazaar for the purpose of raising money for the Soldiers' Club at 426 George-street will be held at the club to-day, commencing at noon, and continuing until 10 p.m. The bazaar will be officially opened at 2.30 p.m. by the State Commandant, Brigadier-General Lee, and the whole of the club premises is to be thrown open to visitors. A number of stalls have been prepared and many useful articles will be offered for sale.

At a meeting of the executive of the Citizens' War Chest Fund yesterday it was resolved to contribute the sum of £100 towards the funds of the club.

SHIPPING TROUBLE.

ALMOST ENDED.

SYDNEY SEAMEN SATISFIED.

The shipping trouble as far as New South Wales is concerned has been settled.

The deadlock in the shipping industry was brought about by the Melbourne seamen refusing to work with volunteers. Officials of the Sydney branch of the Federated Firemen and Seamen's Union yesterday expressed satisfaction at the decision arrived at by the Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association, which had issued instructions to all ports to the effect that where union seamen were willing to work alongside volunteer labour ashore or afloat ships would be recommissioned.

The members of the Sydney branch are quite prepared to abide by these instructions, and maintain that they have been willing for a long time to accept the conditions. A large number of steamers have already been despatched.

In consequence of the trouble with the seamen having been practically settled, a large number of the members of the Sydney Wharf Labourers' Union applied for work yesterday at the offices of the Port Jackson Stevedoring Company. There was also a large number of applicants for enrolment as permanent and casual hands at the shipping companies' bureau in Pitt-street. It is probable that in the course of a few days work on the water front will be in full swing.

CREWS FOR STEAMERS.

No trouble is being experienced by the shipping companies in obtaining crews for the steamers at present held up by the strike. The big M'Ilwraith, M'Eacharn liner Katoomba is scheduled to sail on Monday for Melbourne, Adelaide, and Western Australia, but cargo is only being booked for Melbourne and Western Australia.

WHARF-LABOURERS.

A mass meeting of the Wharf-Labourers' Union was held in the basement of the Town Hall last night. Between 3000 and 4000 men attended the meeting.

It was decided to adopt the recommendation of the Waterside Workers' Federation, and to "stand solid" against using the wharf-labourers' bureau or signing the cards as outlined by the Shipping Federation.

After the meeting closed, large groups of men stood round the Town Hall, and discussed the position. Many of the men expressed regret at the decision of the meeting, and commented on their inability to withstand the pressure of enforced idleness. Some wanted to know why a secret ballot was not taken instead of a show of hands. It was admitted by one speaker at the meeting that forty members of the union had resumed work that day, and it is now more than likely that that number, and many more besides, will sign on to-day in view of the hopeless outlook.

MELBOURNE SEAMEN GIVE WAY.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

Members of the Victorian Seamen's Union decided at a meeting to-night to resume work to-morrow morning. Arrangements are being made for passenger steamers which have been laid up to run again in the interstate service. The Katoomba is advertised to leave Melbourne for Fremantle on Saturday week. About 20 interstate steamers are at present manned by volunteers. Most of them are colliers, but two—the Oonah and Dimboola—carry passengers. About 60 steamers have been lying idle, and unionist seamen have, therefore, plenty of room for employment.

The steamer Bombala will sail to-night for Melbourne.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—To the stranger within our gates, and to the impressionable sympathetic citizen, may I put certain facts which do not substantiate the alarmist reports of distress now reported to be rife. Being the proud possessor of a home and four young Australians I have naturally been anxious to secure domestic help of some sort for my wife—anxiety and efforts spread over the past twelve months—but all my efforts have been fruitless. Now, reading of the distress among our women folk since the strike I redoubled my efforts to secure domestic assistance, have advertised and done all possible to secure such, but without the slightest response. These are the conditions of employment offered. Wages £1 per week. No washing or heavy work. Hours of work would not exceed six daily, and every evening, holiday, and two afternoons in each week free, with a good home and conditions equal to that enjoyed by my family, but not one applicant. Despite this we are told that there is a serious shortage of work in Sydney. In the circumstances I shall continue to support War Funds in preference to the "Local Distress Street Collection" on Friday.

Oct. 18. I am, etc., B. A.

INDUSTRIAL APPEALS.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

A series of judgments was given in the Arbitration Court to-day by Mr. Justice Powers, on applications to vary awards, the chief features of which were appeals for higher wages made by Civil servants on account of the high cost of living brought about by the war and other extraordinary conditions. These were in every instance rejected. In the case of the Post and Telegraph Officers' Association and the Federated Public Service Assistants' Association, for temporary telegraphists and clerical assistants, his Honor adhered to his former award of 12s 6d per day, and to persons not in the Public Service employed as temporary postal assistants, as before, he allotted 11s a day as the minimum rate. Temporary assistants generally would be paid 10s per day. In the matters of the P. and T. Officers' Association, the P.M.S. Association, the Public Service Clerical Association, the Letter Carriers' Association, and the Federated Public Service Assistants' Association, his Honor said it was for Parliament to say what war bonus, if any, must be granted to Public servants for additional clerical work done by them through the war. When it was considered, he assumed, that the war bonus to be paid to Public servants who went to fight for the Empire, would also receive some thought. To give nothing but thanks to them and special increases to those who remained behind to do office war work would be inconsistent. A claim had been made by the various associations that all members should be awarded £18 extra in pay on the ground that the cost of living had increased since 1914. He did not feel justified in granting anything to the letter carriers beyond what he awarded in December, 1916, nor to letter carriers' assistants, nor to storemen packers, motor car drivers, horse drivers, senior messengers, labourers, cleaners, or watchmen. Senior postal assistants would be given the allowance necessary to put them on the same term as other assistants who had been given increases but who were not on the maximum salary. The Australian P. and T. Officers' Association had made the claim referred to, although an award had been made to their members in September, 1916, which was a year after the cost of living had reached its highest limit. He had no hesitation in refusing a further increase to telegraphists and clerical assistants on the ground of the increased cost of living. Other increases were also refused. The maximum and minimum salaries fixed by the existing awards were fair at the present time.

An application by the Acting Public Service Commissioner for a variation of an award so that the letter carriers and sorters would have to work on Eight Hours' Day without extra payment, was refused. In the matter of the Letter Carriers' Association, the Postal Sorters' Union, and the Clerical Association, his Honor, by consent, ordered the appointment of three boards of interpretation. Should either board be unable to determine unanimously any point at issue the secretary must refer the matter to the Industrial Registrar. Dealing with the claim of the P. and T. Officers' Association on behalf of the P. M. S., his Honor varied his award of November 1, 1915, to provide that postmasters in Grade 6 should be paid one increment of £18 per annum if receiving less than £246 a year; fourth-class officers in charge of Grade 7, officers to be paid a minimum of £228.

THEATRICAL EMPLOYEES.

The Australian Theatrical and Amusement Employees' Association asked that their award with J. C. Williamson, Ltd., and others, be varied. Mr. Justice Powers made numerous amendments. He suggested, in the interests of the younger men engaged in this industry, that the union should reconsider some of its narrow rules and let members have a chance of getting out of the groove that the older men had been kept in during the whole of their lives. In the amended award provision was made for one apprentice to every two adults on the permanent staff of the skilled departments, the rates of pay for both males and females commenced at 10s a week and rose in the fifth year to males 40s and females 30s; front of house staff at dramatic performances and night picture show ushers, males £3, females £1 17s; ticket-sellers, males £3, females £2; cloakroom attendants, males £3, females £1 17s; spruikers, £3 10s; minimum wage for female dressers, £2 10s.

SOUTH PACIFIC RAIDER.

GRAPHIC STORY OF THE CRUISE.

On September 29 four men arrived at Tutuila, Samoa, in an open boat.

They were Haldor Smith, master of the American schooner R. C. Slade, registered at San Francisco; John W. Johansson, second mate of the schooner R. C. Slade; Fred. John Williams, second mate of the American schooner Manila, registered in San Francisco; and Charles Thompson, able seaman of the schooner Manila.

Captain H. Smith was in charge of the boat, and said that the party had come for assistance from Mopeha, where they had been marooned by the captain of the German raider, See Adler, who had also captured and destroyed their vessels.

The American naval authorities were informed of the boat's arrival, and an immediate investigation was conducted by Governor Poyer, of the United States naval station, Tutuila. A record of these proceedings was taken and a copy despatched through the American Consul in Sydney to the Navy Office.

CAPTAIN SMITH'S STORY.

Captain Haldor Smith said he was master of the schooner R. C. Slade, and sailed from Sydney on April 24 for San Francisco with a cargo of copra and hardwood. His crew, all told, officers and men, numbered 10.

"From Sydney," proceeded Captain Smith, "I proceeded without any incident until June 17, when I was in latitude about 2 north and longitude 150 west. At about 5 p.m. on June 17 the second mate reported to me whilst I was in the cabin that there was a ship coming up astern, and I went up on deck and climbed the main rigging and took a good look at it. It struck me as very peculiar because I knew there were no full-rigged ships in the Pacific at this time. It was coming up astern. About 5.30 p.m., whilst I was having supper the second mate reported that the vessel was firing on us. I went on deck and looked aft, and instantly as I came on deck they fired again. I saw the shell fall short about two miles. She was about five miles off. There was a heavy squall starting to eastward. The wind was favourable at this time, and I thought it possible to get away, and kept holding on, and he kept firing on me at intervals of about 5 or 13 minutes, and was coming up on me fast. Then she clewed up sails, coming along fast. The ninth shot was fired at 6 p.m., and struck very close, passing the poop and splashed water on the ship. Then I concluded that it was no use attempting to escape, and I lowered down the spanker, clewed down the topsail, hoisted the American flag, and hove to. At about 7 p.m. the raider was up alongside and asked me what ship. I told him who I was, and he then ordered me to lower down all sails and stand by, and he would send an officer aboard me. Shortly after the prize officer came aboard, and a doctor, and about ten men. These officers were in uniform. They told me to leave the ship and to go on board the raider, and they would give me time in the morning to pack my clothes."

Governor Poyer: You were told to go aboard the raider?

Captain Smith: Yes. All men except the cook. They kept the cook on board the schooner and took all our men aboard the raider except the cook and told me they would give me time to pack our clothes and personal belongings in the morning. Next morning at 6 o'clock I went back on board with all my men and packed up. We left the ship about 8.30 a.m. with our belongings, June 18. We were put on board the raider again. Shortly after I saw from the raider that they cut holes in the masts and placed dynamite bombs in each mast and put fire to both ends of the ship and left her. I saw the masts go over the side and the ship was burning from end to end, and the raider steamed away.

In your judgment, what was the size of the raider?. What rig, what length, how many masts?—She was a full-rigged ship with double to' gallant yards. She was an old ship, either steel or iron. I would judge her to be some 2300 tons.

What was her power? What did she have aboard?—She had Diesel engines burning oil.

Could you judge from what you saw aboard about what speed she could make?—She could make only about nine knots, but the vessel was very foul with large barnacles. They were afraid to open up to full speed because it shook her to pieces.

What number of German officers did they have on board?—The commanding officer was Felix Graf von Luckner, Active-Captain Lieutenant. The first lieutenant's name was Alfred Kling, Prize-officers Richard, Piess, a chief engineer, navigating lieutenant, and a fellow they called a mate, and a doctor (seven officers).

How many in the crew?—I was told there was on board 68, including officers and all.

Did you find out how many guns this raider carried?—Two guns.

What size?—10.5 centimeter (about 4-inch guns), and two machine guns.

On this ship, in addition to the crew, how many prisoners were there on board?—It had captured the four-masted American schooner "A. B. Johnson" of San Francisco, three days before. She had nine men from her.

While you were on board did she capture any other vessel?—Yes, sir. She captured the schooner "Manila," a four-master from San Francisco, on July 8, at about 10 degrees north and 148 degrees west.

Did she do the same with the "Manila" as with your vessel?—No. She blew her up with dynamite. She took the officers and men off the "Manila."

How many?—Ten all told. They still hold a Hollander aboard, who was retained on board, from the very first ship captured, because he had insulted the captain by a remark about German money, and was retained on board as a punishment.

Then what happened?—Then we were beating up and down the doldrums, keeping in ships' tracks, for about three weeks; and after meeting with no success they steered south after the 8th of July, and arrived at Mopeha on July 31, and anchored on the lee side of the island. On August 2, in the morning at 9.30 o'clock, there was a little puff of wind from the westward, and the ship went ashore, and there she stuck. She started to pound to pieces, and about noon time she was half full of water. The officers were away on a picnic, and left the vessel. They left one officer on board. Half the crew was ashore, too. Before they could get up steam she struck. The people on board fired guns as a warning for the picnic party to return, as the ship was in danger.

Were the prisoners aboard?—The prisoners were on board working on the ship. The three American captains were ashore on the picnic with the German officers. We returned when they fired. We were about half-way to the lagoon, and when we got alongside we saw that she was pounding very hard.

Did they try to get her off?—They couldn't do anything; she was stuck fast. The propeller was twisted up on the coral reefs. They pumped water and threw ballast overboard, but she sank faster and faster. In the afternoon they gave up the ship for lost, and began to take provisions and ammunition ashore, on August 2, and to take everything moveable from the vessel—boats, gear, wireless, and everything they could salvage—moved everybody ashore, crew, prisoners, and all.

Where did they house you? Did they have any tents?—They built tents of sails from the ship. They took the wireless plant ashore, and set it up between cocoanut trees. They had both sending and receiving apparatus.

Did they listen in at that time?—They could hear Pago Pago, Tahiti, and Honolulu. On August 23 the German officers had fitted up a boat about 32ft long, and rigged her as a sloop, with sails, two jibs, gaffsail, mainsail and a gaff topsail. She was painted red colour, covered over with canvas forward similar to ours. She was fitted with a machine-gun. She was reported to have two months' provisions on board. The machine gun was mounted on a pivot forward. All provisions were sealed up in airtight tins. They put provisions in air tanks, and sealed them up again. The commander took along the navigating lieutenant, first mate, the chief engineer, and the master-at-arms, and a sailor. They left Mopeha in the afternoon about 2 o'clock, August 23. On September 1 I was told they had heard wireless code messages from Pago Pago to the American Consul, two of them, a long and a short one. They got very scared at this time, because they thought the count had been captured. His idea was to go out towards the Cook Islands or the Fiji Islands, and capture an American schooner, and come back for his crew. They got an idea that he had been captured from these messages. They got very busy instantly fitting up boats. Their intention was to leave as soon as they had them fixed up.

What were they going to do with you?—They were going to leave us. On September 5 a trading schooner came in, a French schooner from Papeete named "Lutece." She was sighted in the morning on the lee side of the island, and First Lieutenant Kling took the first motor-boat and machine gun and men and went out and captured her. T they started to breaking everything down, smashing the wireless plant instantly. They smashed to pieces and burned everything they could not take along.

Tell about this schooner?—She was a schooner of about 124 tons. One top mast. This was September 5. She had on board four tons of water, 450 sacks of flour, 150 cases salmon, and 150 cases beef. After they had everything on board they left us a certain amount of provisions and left in the evening at 9 o'clock.

How many people were left on the island?—On the trading schooner there were 14 men.

That made 44 people left there?—There were four natives on the island before. Three men and a boy.

That made 48 souls on the island?—Yes, sir.

Tell me what provisions they had. What did they leave you?—They didn't leave us much, and what they did leave was not good. They left us flour, and it was very bad. Sugar and butter and canned mutton and little odds and ends, syrup and molasses.

Did this motor-boat that the captain went away in with the machine gun have rifles and bombs aboard it?—Yes, sir.

What else?—Hand grenades.

Did you ever hear of him again?—No.

You were left on the 5th September all alone?—Yes, sir.

What is there on the island in the way of food?—There are cocoanuts, but they are nearly all gone. There are so many rats there they destroy the cocoanuts. And the Germans chopped the trees down instead of climbing them. There are lots of turtles and fish.

Then what happened?—They left us the little boat. Half the bottom was out of it. We went to work and fixed that boat up. We worked night and day, and in about three days we had her fitted up, the 8th of September. On the Lutece there were two French owners and 14 natives. The native captain of the Lutece tried to make us believe that we could easily get to Tahiti with that boat, about 250 miles. It was impossible, and I was against it from the beginning, and every one turned against me for that. Some of the crews were armed, and it was bad for us; we were unarmed (meaning the officers). The old captain of the Manila was left in charge, an old man about 60 years old. He took this boat out, accompanied by the native captain and the second mate, Mr. Williams, and three more natives, and one of the French owners, seven in all. On September 8, at 3 o'clock in the morning, they started. Their idea was to get up to Maupiti, about 100 miles north-west, and there to get a motor schooner and proceed to Papeete, but the whole thing turned out a fizzle, and they got back September 16, at 8 p.m., all played out. They had bad weather and couldn't make it. Two days more it took to fix the boat up again. Then I took three men with me, my own second mate and the second mate from the Manila, who had been on the trip before, and a sailor from the Manila, and took sufficient provisions to last us three weeks, and went for Pago Pago and arrived here to-day, September 29, ten days later.

When did you leave?—September 19, at 8 a.m.

Were you able to keep track of your speed and the course of the boat?—We had two sextants, a compass, and provisions.

You left on the 19th September, and this is ten days later. You left 44 people there. Are they in danger of starvation?—There are quite a few turtles, and they can get lots of fish. The water is brackish, but there is no danger of their dying. The only danger is of sickness. One fellow had gangrene when I left. There is a little medicine, but they don't know how to use it.

What was the name of the raider?—Her name was the See Adler. The name on the bow of the ship was Irma.

Did they tell you where they got this ship?—Yes, sir.

What did they say?—This ship is supposed to be the old American ship Pass of Balmaha. I think she belonged to the Boston Lumber Company. She was a Nova Scotia ship before the war. She was put under the American flag after the war broke out. She was captured by the English, and a prize officer was put aboard, and she was to be taken to Kirkwall, England. While the prize officer was aboard her she was held up by a German submarine, captured, and they took the whole thing to Bremen and fitted her out as a raider. The engine in her was one that had been on exhibition taken from Belgium. She laid a long time at Bremen, and they collected a crew from all over Germany. A sufficient number of the crew collected spoke Norwegian fluently, and helped to pass it as a Norwegian ship. They had Norwegian books for the sailors that were false. The books were genuine, but the men did not own them, they had been picked to fit the men, so they could pass as a Norwegian. She left Bremen on December 21, 1916, and on Christmas Day, December 25, she was held up by the British auxiliary cruiser Highland Scot, and examined and was passed. The way the ship had been fixed up was wonderful. The count (the captain) had his cabin full of Norwegian flags, sofa cushions on the sofas, with pictures of Norwegian kings and queens. They had a deck load.

Where were their guns?—They were between decks, and the crew and boats were between decks. The lumber was loaded so that if the hatches were raised they could see nothing but lumber. None of them showed uniforms that day they were examined. All this is what I have heard from several persons. They thought it was a great joke on the English the way they had passed them. They had Norwegian books issued by the Norwegian Government to show who the men were, sort of a sailor's record. They picked men who would fit the books.

Where did they get the books?—They probably took them from ships they had captured and found the men of the crew would fit the description of the books. They were real books, but not made for the men who had them.

Did they say anything of the captures made in the Atlantic?—They said they had captured 13 ships in the Atlantic and four in the Pacific. They valued the ships destroyed in the Atlantic at 50,000,000 marks.

In the Pacific they captured you, the A. B. Johnson, the Manila, and the French ship?—Yes, sir.

Other information obtained from Captain Smith was to the effect that the schooner Manila was loaded with lumber from San Francisco for Australia. The raider was unable to burn or sink the Manila, and when they left her she was still afloat. This derelict will be a menace to navigation.

Captain Smith stated that after the See Adler was abandoned the Germans blew the main mast and mizzen mast and the foretop mast out of the ship by using dynamite. Their object was to prevent passing vessels from sighting the masts of the vessel. They left the lower foremast and forevard standing, and stated their reason to be that they left the foremast standing in order to use it to hoist out the two guns and place them on board the schooner, which the commander of the raider had hoped to capture with the motor boat and to return to Mopeha with relief.

Captain Smith was told that the Germans had exploded charges of dynamite under the guns to insure their destruction. He was not sure of this fact, however, and the accuracy of the information is regarded as doubtful. It is entirely probable that this statement was made to deceive; and, although the See Adler may be a wreck, it is entirely possible that her two 10.5 centimeter guns may be in a position to use.

Captain Smith stated that the quality of the water supply on the island was bad, being very brackish and liable to produce sickness. They were boiling this water before using it.

MAROONED CREWS RESCUED.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

When the German raider See Adler sank some merchant vessels in the South Pacific Ocean the German commander marooned the crews on the Island of Mopeha. The Secretary to the Navy Department (Mr. Macaudie) stated to-day that the Governor of Papeete had sent a vessel to rescue the men, who had now been taken off the island.

RETURNED SOLDIERS.

A deputation representing unemployed returned soldiers waited upon the Acting Premier, Mr. Fuller, and the Minister for Labour and Industry, Mr. Beeby, yesterday at Parliament House, in order to represent that there were over 600 returned soldiers out of work at the present time.

Whilst the whole position was sympathetically discussed, Mr. Fuller urged the members of the deputation not to indulge in generalities. He asked that a list of the names and addresses of the unemployed soldiers should be immediately sent to the Minister for Labour and Industry, divided if possible into groups of the men who were capable of hard work and those who were looking for lighter work.

Mr Beeby said that he believed that with the co-operation of the labour exchanges very valuable work could be done in getting suitable positions for these men. It was, however, necessary to have real facts, and with proper information the labour exchanges would exert every effort to assist those who were out of work.

CONFERENCE ON INDUSTRIAL LEGISLATION.

It was made known this afternoon by the State Premier (Sir Alexr. Peacock) that the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) intends to summon the Ministers for Labour and the permanent heads of the Labour Departments of the various States to meet him in conference early next month to discuss amendments in industrial legislation.

CHILD MURDER.

DUBBO, Thursday.

John Ernest Moss Meizer was charged with maliciously and feloniously murdering Zena Audrey Hill, aged four years, at Narromine, on August 6. The evidence showed that Meizer was employed by George Hill on a farm. On August 6, Hill was absent, and the mother left the girl playing in the chaff shed, where Meizer was working. Later, the mother asked Meizer where the child was. Meizer said that he did not know. The mother searched everywhere, Meizer assisting her; and later the mother found the body covered with chaff and old bags, and a pole, lying in the shed. Binder twine was tightly hitched round the neck, and the child's clothing was torn. Meizer assisted the mother to put the body in a sulky which Mrs. Hill drove to meet her husband, while Meizer voluntarily went to a neighbour's house to ring up the police.

The evidence was purely circumstantial. The doctor stated that the child's head had been heavily hit with a heavy instrument, probably while being strangled. The jury after five hours' retirement, found Meizer guilty, and Mr. Justice Pring passed sentence of death.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S FESTIVAL.

Last night the sixth annual festival of the Young People's Department was held in the Pitt-street Congregational Church, the Rev. N. J. Cocks, M.A., presiding. A magnificent flower offering was received in aid of the Children's Hospital. During the evening the shields offered for the schools obtaining the best results at the Scripture examination were presented, that for schools with an average attendance of over 60 being won by the Mosman school, and that for schools with an average attendance below 60 being won by the Homebush school.

RELATIONS TO VISIT WOUNDED.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

It will come as a relief to many relations and friends of members of the A.I.F. who have been wounded in France, and whose condition has become so serious that their removal from Continental to English military hospitals is impossible, to learn that the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) has received advice from the Commandant of the Administrative Headquarters, A.I.F., London, that casualty permits have been issued for transport facilities to be provided during this year for the relations of three such officers and twenty-seven other ranks to visit their kinsman.

CHAMPION RIFLEMAN KILLED.

CORPORAL DAVID L. McALISTER, youngest son of Mr. Thos. McAlister, of Gundagai.

Our Gundagai correspondent telegraphed yesterday that information had been received that Corporal David L. McAlister was killed in action on September 26. He was the champion rifle shot of Australia, having won the King's at Sydney in 1913 and the King's at Adelaide in the same year. He was also the winner of the King's at Bisley in 1914, and of the Service Champion Match of Scotland in the same year.

The late Corporal McAlister possessed over 50 rifle trophies. He was a single man.

Y.M.C.A.

THE 63rd ANNIVERSARY.

"In the lapse of its 63 years' existence the Y.M.C.A. has never stood higher in the estimation of the world than it does now," was the pronouncement, made amidst applause, by the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir William Cullen, who presided at the 63rd anniversary of the Sydney branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, held in the Town Hall, last night. His Excellency was accompanied by Lady Cullen and Brigadier-General and Mrs. Finn, and was attended by Captain D'Apice.

The anniversary festival consisted of a tea, an organ recital by Miss Lilian Frost, and the public meeting, and the attendance at each was very large.

In the interval between the tea and the public meeting Miss Lilian Frost gave an organ recital.

In opening the public meeting, the Lieutenant-Governor said that in 63 years' existence the association had seen many changes, but it had never stood higher in estimation than now. The association had 1700 men either in the fighting line or helping at the front. That was a very fine thing. Although many were formerly apathetic towards the organisation and its work, they had been turned from the critical spirit. On its success, therefore, he congratulated the association.

The president, Mr. W. G. Crane, in proposing a vote of thanks to the citizens' committee, said that of the association's membership 710 had enlisted in the A.I.F. (Applause.) The public had, however, responded liberally to the association's funds during the period of the war, the subscriptions aggregating £242,000. Red Triangle Day had yielded £186,000, which on top of, and in conjunction with other donations, was a fine result. The association was still progressing. Public interest had reached extensive dimensions, and though finances were not without anxiety the association hoped soon to be able to make an effort to raise £155,000 to wipe off the indebtedness on its properties, and to make adequate provision for soldiers and sailors on their return to civil life.

The motion was carried with acclamation, and was responded to by Mr. G. Mason Allard, chairman of the citizens' committee.

The Rev. Principal Harper, D.D., delivered an address on "Some aspects of the world at war."

At intervals of the meeting Mr. Charles Smythe sang "Thou art Arisen, my Beloved" (S. Coleridge Taylor), Mr. Harry Thomas recited "Carillion" (Cammaerts), with organ accompaniment, and Miss Lilian Frost played on the organ "The Australian Patrol" (Summerbelle).

LABOUR COUNCIL.

A UNION EXPELLED.

The Amalgamated Painters and Decorators' Union was attacked at last night's meeting of the New South Wales Trades and Labour Council owing to the stand it took during the recent industrial trouble.

Mr. Mahoney (Ship Painters and Dockers' Union) said he would charge the Painters and Decorators' Union with working against the best interests of his (the speaker's) members by occupying the places of his members when they ceased work. During the strike the members of the Painters and Decorators' Union did work which they were never known to have done before. They were worse than the loyalists, in fact, one could appreciate the loyalists, as the latter had never been connected with the union movement. He moved a motion to the effect that, in the opinion of the council, the Amalgamated Painters and Decorators' Union was not fit to be affiliated with the Labour Council; and, further, that the union mentioned be requested to withdraw.

Mr. Wheeler seconded the motion.

Mr. Gilbert, replying to the statements, said that in the first place the Painters and Decorators' Union passed a motion that they would remain neutral, and struck a levy to assist those men who were out of work. Subsequently a motion that the members cease work was defeated by a small majority. Therefore, the members had to abide by the decision of the majority. The work the members of his union were doing on the troopships at the present time was similar to what they had been doing at the beginning of the war.

Mr. Kavanagh, secretary of the council, suggested that the matter be referred to the executive for a thorough investigation. There were other unions whose position might well be inquired into also. He thought that the executive would occupy itself usefully in the interests of the whole movement.

Mr. Adams (Painters and Decorators' Union), moved an amendment in the direction suggested by Mr. Kavanagh, which was seconded by Mr. Morby (vice-president).

On division, the amendment was lost, and the motion carried by 53 to 41.

DEATH OF SUMNER LOCKE.

Sumner Locke, the well-known Australian novelist, passed away yesterday morning in a private hospital at Kogarah after giving birth to a son, and the event will be learned with widespread regret. Early this year, whilst rehearsing her rustic farcical comedy, "Mum Dawson, Boss," with Mr. Bert Bailey, at the Criterion Theatre, she laughingly remarked that she had but two ambitions in life—to produce a play and to produce a son. Her heart's desire was realised with her last breath. The pathos of her unexpected end is increased by the fact that her husband, Sergeant L. Elliott, A.I.F., is at the front.

Sumner Locke was the daughter of a Church of England minister, who named her after Archbishop Sumner, and she was born in Queensland. Though slight and small of figure, her mental energy was extraordinary, so that quite early in life she made a name as a journalist, and by her success with her humorous bush story, "Skeeter Farm." During her brief career she visited London, and on the way from the railway terminus to her lodgings read an advertisement offering a large money prize for an original story. She wrote it during the same day, sent it in, and carried off the prize! Another of her remarkable feats was the writing of a rustic American novel, "Samaritan Mary," which was accepted and published in the United States, where it enjoyed a remarkable success, before ever she had set foot in the country. The young authoress not only possessed imagination, as illustrated by the above achievement, but wrote with amazing facility, and had other novels ready for publication when she visited New York a few months ago. Finding that the Atlantic was a closed route, she relinquished her intention of revisiting London, where she had made many literary friends, and returned to Sydney last August. This brilliant woman has brothers at the front, sisters in London and Victoria, and a sister, Mrs. G. M. Burns, wife of the former M.P. for Illawarra, in Sydney.

LATE MAJOR-GENERAL HOLMES.

A memorial service to the late Major-General W. Holmes, who was killed in France, will be held at St. Matthias' Church, Paddington, at 11 a.m. on Sunday next. Accommodation will be reserved for about 200 members of the military forces.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

FEDERAL PER CAPITA REVENUE.

THE DEFAMATION ACT.

Replying to Mr. Dooley in the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon, the Acting Premier, Mr. Fuller, said that an insurance policy had been taken out on behalf of the Premier, Mr. Holman, in respect to his sea voyages to and from England and the United States.

Dr. Arthur asked if it was a fact that a number of persons of enemy origin were still employed in the Public Service of the State, while a large number of returned soldiers found themselves on the unemployed market after their discharge from the military forces.

Mr. Fuller said he was not aware that there were people of that character employed in the Public Service. With regard to the returned soldiers who were reported to be out of work, he had that day met a deputation representing them, and was hopeful that arrangements could be made by which employment could be found for all of them.

Mr. Loughlin gave notice of a motion for the amendment of the Electoral Act to provide for a system of preferential voting.

Answering Mr. Osborne, the Acting Premier said that the necessity for the establishment of the meat pool was brought about by the strike. As soon as the need was satisfied it would no longer exist. Whatever complaints the retail butchers had to urge would, he understood, be brought before him by deputation on the following day. He might then be able to express an opinion on that matter.

Mr. Gardiner asked, in view of the repudiation given by Ministers on the previous night, that the Acting Premier should inquire from the Auditor-General what grounds there were for his statement in this annual report that he had withheld criticism of certain matters in deference to a Ministerial decision.

Mr. Fuller: So far as I can discover, no Minister has approached the Auditor-General in the way suggested. I certainly am not going to approach him, because I have always understood that he is a servant of Parliament. (Ministerial applause.)

Mr. Osborne gave notice of a resolution for the introduction of a system of State lotteries under the Government control.

FEDERAL CUSTOMS REVENUE.

In answer to a question by Mr. Oakes, the Acting Treasurer, Mr. Fitzpatrick, said that he had procured a statement with regard to the number of volunteers who had left New South Wales, for whom the Federal Treasurer had indicated that it was not proposed to pay the 25s per head return from the Customs revenue of the Commonwealth. The position was that in the financial year 1914-15 a sum of £14,000 was involved, for the following year £39,000, and for the year 1916-17 a sum of £61,000, or a total of £114,000. "I would like to say, however," added the Acting Treasurer, "that whatever criticism has been directed against the States in this regard, does not apply to New South Wales, because we have not made any demand for the payment of this money, and do not intend to do so." (Ministerial applause.)

BOGUS BUSINESSES.

Dr. Arthur asked whether the Government would enquire as to the alleged operations of persons who were selling bogus businesses with no goodwill whatever.

The Attorney-General said he would consider Dr. Arthur's suggestion, but he was not very hopeful of being able to prevent people buying businesses which were not worth the money paid. Something might be done to stop misrepresentation, but after all it was a matter for the buyers themselves.

COAL MINES.

Replying to Mr. Kearsley, the Minister for Labour and Industry said that there was only one mine—Richmond Main—which was not working. He hoped that work would be resumed there before long. The Government had asked the three coal districts whether they would co-operate in a complete scheme of conciliation. If the miners would appoint delegates he was hopeful that a scheme would be devised which would lead to the more peaceful working of the coal mines in future.

DEFAMATION ACT.

In moving the second reading of the Defamation (Amendment) Bill, the Attorney-General said it was probably the shortest bill which had ever been introduced in any Parliament. Its object was to repeal section 31 of the Defamation Act. That section made the machinery on which a newspaper was printed liable to seizure if any libel had been printed upon it, no matter who the owner might be. If the House amended the Act, only the goods of the wrongdoers would be liable to seizure. The effect of the present law was to cripple the small publisher, and the amendment would bring to him a great measure of relief.

Mr. John Storey (leader of the Opposition) thought that the newspaper man would be very much less careful if he knew he was not going to lose his property.

The Attorney-General: If the pressman owns the machinery he will lose it.

Mr. B. J. Doe, in strongly commending the bill, said it would make it possible for many struggling country newspaper proprietors to instal up-to-date machinery, which they were unable to do under the existing law.

The bill was read the second time and, on the motion of Mr. Ley, a new clause was added in committee, to the effect that the Act should not apply to any action or other proceeding commenced before the passing of the measure.

The bill, as amended, was reported, the third reading being fixed for the next sitting.

INSURANCE AMENDMENT.

The Life, Fire, and Marine Insurance Amendment Bill was further considered in Committee.

Mr. Bavin moved an amendment to section 4, to give the protection to an uncertificated bankrupt now denied to him, the protection to be effective as soon as a policy was taken out, and to be limited to a policy for the benefit of the wife and children, this exemption not to apply to a greater extent than £500.

Consideration of the amendment was postponed.

On the motion of the Attorney-General the bill was amended so as to bring a soldier within the provisions of the bill if death occurs as the result of illness caused or injuries received during active service within two years after ceasing to be so engaged.

Mr. Ley secured a further amendment entitling to the protection of the measure any subjects of his Majesty's Allies, the point being made that when war broke out there were many French, Belgian, and Russian soldiers here who had taken out insurance policies.

The bill was also amended to take in any religious or patriotic organisation engaged in connection with war work, and persons engaged on active service abroad as members of the Medical Corps Nursing Service of the army or naval forces of Great Britain and her Allies, or engaged on active service with the Army Medical Service.

Progress was reported.

The Western Lands Amendment Bill was passed through Committee, and the House rose till 2.30 to-day.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

The Aborigines Protection Amendment Bill was read a second time.

The Birds and Animals Protection Bill was taken through committee and reported with amendments, the third reading being fixed for Tuesday. One amendment gives power to prescribe safeguards, and the methods of laying poison in order to preserve birds and animals protected under the bill.

At 6.45 p.m. the House adjourned until Tuesday.

IMPORTS OF POTATOES.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

A proclamation was issued in the "Commonwealth Gazette" to-day prohibiting the importation of potatoes into Australia unless and except under certain conditions. Shipments must be accompanied by an official certificate from a responsible officer of a Government department of the country of origin identifying the potatoes, specifying the quantity, and certifying that at the date of the issue of the certificate they were free from Irish blight, potato canker, black scab, warty disease, cauliflower disease, and all other serious diseases, and that they were grown on premises known after due investigation not to be or to have been during the preceding 12 months infected with any of these diseases. It is further provided that potatoes, after being landed, must be planted in a quarantine station, and, after having matured, must, with the product of their cultivation, be found to be free from disease. No consignment must exceed 14lb.

VICTORIAN TRAINING NOTES.

CAULFIELD.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The final gallops for the Caulfield Cup attracted a fair number of visitors to the heath this morning, in spite of the heavy rain which fell. The grass was open for special gallops, and those who got to work early had all the better of it, as later on the rain came down in a deluge and made a vast difference in the going. Rael Locin moved nicely for nine furlongs in 1m 59s, and he was 1m 8½s running the last five furlongs. Bardol ran home the last three furlongs on some strong exercise in 42s, and Que Sera travelled a furlong more in 57s. Kilfoyle was half a length better than Almoner when four furlongs had been run in 50s. Wedge went off steadily and ran a mile and three furlongs in 2m 28½s, and was 1m 6¾s doing the concluding five furlongs. Whitefield dashed off four furlongs in 51s. The wind was starting to change and rain to fall when Bronzetti and Court Jester galloped nine furlongs in 1m 59s, with Bronzetti in front at the finish. Mile gallops were done by Erastus in 1m 50¼s, and Camp Out in 1m 49¼s. Treadwell sported four furlongs in 54½s, and Wyadra was 55s. The rain had fallen in torrents and the grass had become very heavy for those who followed. Polygamist had to be held back to Shacko for a mile and a quarter, in 2m 20½s. Sir Amyas moved nicely for a mile in 1m 48¼s, and he cut out the first four in 53s. King of the Sea led Eudoxus all the way for four furlongs in 52½s. Cetigne was not out to make time for a mile and a quarter in 2m 21s, and he ran the last six furlongs in 1m 23¼s. Remmon was getting very tired at the end of six furlongs, in 1m 19½s. Verdun showed pace for four furlongs in 53s, and was evidently pretty smart. Linass never once got his head for a mile and a quarter in 2m 12½s. Ptani slipped over six furlongs in 1m 23½s, and others to go that distance were Kongorong in 1m 22s, Lord Linacre in 1m 23s, Secret Service in 1m 25½s, and Sunbury beat Bokowina in 1m 28s. Bosu Syce and Princess Mila cut out four furlongs in 55½s. Kanatarie, Lingle, The Fortune Hunter, Ranger, and Klinflinn all went steadily.

FLEMINGTON.

Rain set in early, and continued to fall more or less heavily during yesterday morning, when there was very little of interest in the proceedings. New-comers to put in an appearance were the two-years-old Woorawa and Son of the Desert, and the three-years-old Conarre, but they were only walking. Harriet Graham was trotting, and did not seem any the worse for her race in the Eclipse Stakes. Chrome was walking about, and he did not seem to have come to much harm by the knocking about he got in the Coongy Handicap, though he had some inches of hair taken off his near hind leg above the hock, where he was galloped upon. Biplane, after striding along at an improving pace for five furlongs, put on full speed for seven furlongs on the outside of the course in 1m 35s, and, as usual, reached out in fine style. Wallace Isinglass and Satin Bird also used the course while running nine furlongs in 2m 5½s, and so did Pentana (T. Burn), who had a trifle in reserve while running a mile and a half in 2m 48s. Pierian did an even-time half-mile, and Litmus was 1m 2¼s over the last six furlongs of his work. Thana and Colbert did an even-time mile on the cinders, where Ipoh (L. Franklin) ran six furlongs in 1m 20s, and Colchis went along for half a mile in 55½s. Sylvan Lass and Lineeman ran an even-time mile and a quarter, and Highview did good pacing. Lanius, who looked in great heart, and moved in his usual even style, used the course while going five furlongs in 1m 9½s. Flushing Honours and Ocean Prince went over the same round in even time, and Thessaurs and Democracy spurted three furlongs in 39½s. Bronzewood (G. Wallace) went easily for a mile on the inside sand in 1m 53s, and King Kora comfortably did the same distance in 1m 48½s.

VICTORIAN SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

To-day Chrome was the most fancied candidate for the Caulfield Cup. Bronzetti and Lingle were estimated to be a point further back, with Mistico, Wallace Isinglass, and Sir Amyas two points further down. Pah King was rated next, one point away; King's Bounty was considered to have a chance one point longer, with Rael Locin two points off, and next in order were Lavendo, Cetigne, The Fortune Hunter, and Linass.

B. Deeley will ride Rael Locin in the Caulfield Cup; A. P. Whicker will ride Ranger; G. Wallace will have the mount on Bronzewood; and G. Eaton will ride Shacko.

SAILING.

The Queensland Flying Squadron is making another attempt to bring about a series of interstate races at Brisbane. After the Western Australian carnival at the beginning of 1914, Queensland was to have been the venue for the next series of contests amongst the eighteen footers, but owing to the war they had to be postponed. The club has now invited local 18 footers to visit Brisbane for a series of races during the Christmas and New Year holidays, and boat owners are being asked to say whether they will make the trip by the 29th instant.

DEREGISTRATION SOUGHT.

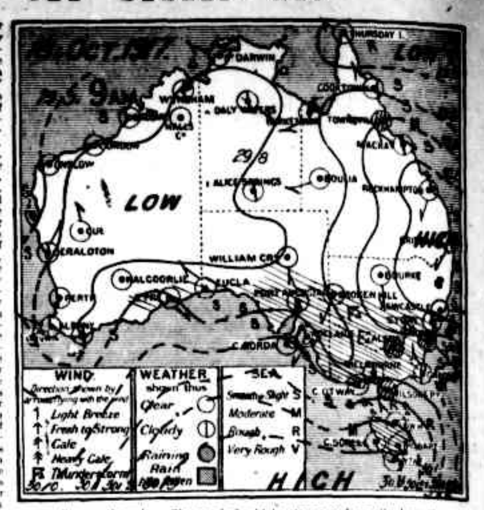

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

In the Arbitration Court, Mr. Justice Higgins heard an application calling upon the Australasian Coal and Shale Employees' Federation, through its officials, to show cause why it should not be deregistered as an organisation under the Federal Arbitration Acts.

His Honor said Mr. Schrader would have to show him in what way it would be to the public interest to deregister the union. The Court could not exercise its powers merely as a matter of vengeance. The further hearing was adjourned until the morning.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure over the Tasman Sea, by Thursday morning, oscillated slightly towards the north-east; the northern part of this "high," which extended inland to the western districts of Queensland, was practically in the same position as on Wednesday. The Antarctic disturbance, which was well to the south of Tasmania, had, by Thursday morning, moved northwards, and had gained a considerable amount of energy during the 24 hours. It was over the South Island of New Zealand on Thursday, with its centre to the south of the Bluff. Fully two-thirds of the continent was, on Thursday morning, covered by an extensive monsoonal depression, with its centre between the Western Australian goldfields and the overland line. Another interesting feature in the pressure distribution was a big high pressure over the Southern Ocean, with its centre to the south of Tasmania, where the barometric readings were as high as 30.3 inches. With these different systems we should get further rains and thunderstorms over the southern half with lower temperatures, and later extending northwards. The wind should be strong and squally from the south-east, with rough seas on the South Coast.

Ocean Forecast.—Strong SE gales between Hobart and Sydney; fresh SE on parts of Queensland coast; data wanting from Western Australia.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR UNION.

The 26th annual State Convention of the New South Wales Christian Endeavour Union was opened last night at the Bathurst-street Baptist School Hall. After a welcome tea the retiring president, the Rev. T. F. Potts, received the delegates. At the annual council meeting the chair was taken by the new president, the Rev. R. J. Williams, and the Rev. W. P. Phillips was elected president-elect. The various reports which were received indicate that the movement was well maintaining its work. The junior rally will take place at the Town Hall to-morrow afternoon, and at night the intermediate rally will be held in the City Mission Hall, Elizabeth-street.

FINANCIAL.

MARCUS CLARK AND CO.

The report of the above company covers the 12 months ended July 28. It shows that trade improved, and stocks were well maintained, notwithstanding the difficulty of obtaining supplies and increases in cost of goods, freight, and insurance. A net profit of £39,995 is shown, and in view of the satisfactory results of the company's trading, and of the fact that goodwill account has been extinguished, the directors recommend the rate of dividend in ordinary shares be increased from 8 to 10 per cent. This absorbs £30,000; dividend of 8 per cent. on preference shares £9000; to reserve, £1,000; to reserve for equalisation of dividends, £1000, leaving £520 to be carried forward.

WAR TIME PROFITS TAX.

"J.G.":—(1) Only incomes from businesses or from the sale of commodities are subject to War-time Profits Tax; (2) No; (3) No; (4) Yes.

THE MORATORIUM.

"Parent":—Yes, only interest need be paid. No foreclosure could take place without an order of the Court, which in such a case would be difficult, if not impossible, to obtain. "Constant Reader":—It depends upon whether there is a clause in the mortgage contracting you out of the moratorium. If there is not then interest only need be paid. If there is, then the mortgagee can foreclose.

MISCELLANEOUS QUERIES.

Green Peas.—Peas and beans are not allowed to be sold by measure. They must be sold by weight. If they are put up for sale in bags, retail, the weight must be legibly written or printed on the bags or on labels firmly attached to the bags.

"R.T."—There is no such law.

INCOME TAXES.

EXEMPTION ON COMPOSITE INCOMES.

"Perplexed" writes:—

Sir,—The exemption from taxation in respect of composite incomes. I think it would provide a benefit if you would kindly outline the method employed in arriving at the manner in which the exemption deductions are made. The Federal Act (which is rather vague to those, like myself, who are under a cloud regarding the calculation method) states that: (a) The exemption as regards income from personal exertion drops £1 in every £4 over £156; (b) in the case of income from property drops £5 in every £11 over £156; and (c) the deduction in the case of composite incomes is apportioned pro rata between the income from each source. The Attorney-General's Department, I understand, subsequently ruled that the maximum exemption applies in both cases, in contradiction to the original intention that only one maximum exemption was to be allowed. Assuming, for illustration purposes, that a net income (after all ordinary deductions had been provided for) of £451 was earned from property, and a net income of £290 was earned from personal exertion, I take it that the exemption in each case would be assessed as follows:—

Property	£451
Less	150
	11/295
	—	Deduct from £156—net exemption under this heading, £37.
	24
	5
	£130
Personal exertion	£290
Less	156	Deduct from £156—net exemption under this heading, £120.
	£36

Does the clause that the pro rata exemption deductions then mean that £36 (representing the property exemption) will be added to £120 (representing the personal exertion exemption), making £156, and divided in the ratio of 451-721 and 290-721.

Our correspondent's surmise is correct. After ascertaining the total exemption in the manner he indicates the proportion to be allotted to each class of income is worked out.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Grocery lines were steady yesterday, but there was little business recorded between houses, and the more so in view of the pronouncement of an interstate commissioner that rates should not be above those ruling in July, 1916. This simply meant that no one could buy to re-sell at a profit. Dates were distributing at various rates, but the general run seemed to be 5¾d, in a few cases 6d. Canary seed was difficult to obtain. The inquiry for oatmeal was hardly as good as it had been, a sign of approaching summer. Gestling's whiting was inquired for by the cordial manufacturers. Nothing was obtainable under £18. The freight on this is now £11 a ton, the rate having advanced £5 a ton, while the freight on most other goods advanced £4. Whiting is bought out by the ton weight, and not by the measured ton, and as the measured ton means a larger return for the shipowner goods brought out by weight are charged a heavier rate.

A fair business was done in oils. Champion's whitelead distributed at £88 net in ton lots. No information had been received from official quarters as to allowance being made to charge different rates for the lead according to the container, whether cwts, half cwts, quarters, or 16lb. Linseed oil was without alteration.

Metal lines were quiet, with no change in rates. As to the position in America a letter from John Dunn and Co., of New York, dated September 6, points out that production was still being driven ahead, but over everything hung the uncertainty as to Government action regarding prices and the distribution of products. In the case of coal, coke, foods, and foodstuffs, the Government has full powers as to prices and distribution; but on other goods its power is limited to determining the price of its own purchases. The labour position in America is very unsatisfactory. There is unceasing German propaganda going on, seizing every opportunity to foment trouble among the working classes. Shipment of many commodities for export is only possible under license. Among these are lubricating oils, naphtha, benzine, red oil, kerosene, and gasoline, peanuts, meats, and fats, cotton-seed oil, fresh, dried, and canned fish, glucose, pigiron, steel ingots, billets blooms, slabs and sheet bars, iron and steel plates, tool steel, soap and soap powders, all engines and motors, lead and white-lead, and newspaper. The opinion is expressed that there would probably be no difficulty in obtaining licenses for Australia except as regards steel plates and similar articles.

There was no change in jute goods yesterday.

HEAVY BUTTER SHIPMENT.

A brisk inquiry continued for new laid eggs in Sussex-street yesterday, and late prices were maintained with comparative ease.

Heavy shipments of butter were received from the northern rivers. The Orara landed a record load of 8018 boxes, which represented an increase of 3000 boxes on the week. Although no official announcement has been made in regard to the conference of the Federal Butter Committee which has been sitting in Sydney, it is understood in connection with the charges to be borne by sellers on the surplus butter sold to the Imperial Government that arrangements apportioning the costs have been made. The decision outlined is reported to be that the Federal butter pool will control the handling and financing of the butter, and advances from outside sources will not be permitted. Factories will be returned 151/ per cwt. f.o.b. for first-grade, but from this sum 5 per cent. is to be deducted to defray costs. Storage, insurance, etc. are expected to absorb 3½ per cent., and agents' charges, commission, etc., the remaining 1½ per cent. A resolution was passed that sales of butter to oversea markets be controlled by the Federal Butter Committee, and that the surplus over prices paid by the Imperial Government on oversea sales of bulk butter should be paid into the Federal pool. Sales to the East and other than the United Kingdom may continue as heretofore, as far as possible under the control of the committee. It was suggested that should the Imperial Government distribute Australian butter in England the usual English distributing channels should be allowed to handle the butter on behalf of the Imperial Government. Also that all butter placed in cool store since July 26 be included in the sale to the British Government. The margins in the fixed prices for local consumption were considered too wide. The difference between first and third grades is 3d per lb, while the Imperial Government penalises each point under first grade 1/ per cwt. In regard to cheese, it was decided to make a counter offer of the surplus to the Government at 9d per lb for first grade.

Quotations were:—

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

There was an extremely strong inquiry for onions in Sussex-street, and new season's Silverskins realised £30 per ton, while Brown Spanish onions rose £3 to the unprecedented price of £28 per ton. The outlet by rail through Albury is becoming a little less restricted, and already a considerable quantity of potatoes has been ordered for delivery in Sydney next week.

RAILWAY MARKET.

PRICES FIRMER.

Wheaten chaff made up the bulk of yesterday's forage supply. Generally the quality was better than the usual standard, and the demand existing for good quality being brisk prices obtained were much firmer than those of the previous day.

Oaten chaff was scarce, and consequently competition was spirited for available stocks, with the result that prices rose. A poor demand ruled for lucerne, and both hay and chaff passed out at weaker rates.

Agents sought high prices for their potato consignments, and were partly successful, for values showed a decided increase on weaker rates of the previous day.

Consignments placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw, chaff, 68; grain, 3; potatoes, 14. Produce manifested to arrive:—Hay, straw, chaff, 163; grain, 12; potatoes, 56.

HOMEBUSH STOCK SALES.

SHEEP.

MARKET WEAKER AND GENERALLY DULL.

There was a penning yesterday of 14,804 sheep, representing 49 owners in different parts of the State. The supply embraced all classes, but the general quality of the sheep was not equal to the consignments of late. There was an absence of very heavy prime sheep, for which there was a good demand from the exporters and others operating. The result was that prime heavy-weights, with full-wool skins, in both the merino and crossbred sections, were firm, but for all other classes of sheep quotations were weaker, and the market generally dull. The pool as usual operated for the metropolis, and there was a fair attendance of mountain and coastal butchers, as well as exporters and store buyers. Over 100 merino wethers from H. Heldtmann, of Milvale, sold to 51/9, and average 47/1; and cross wethers from the same owner made to 47/, and averaged 44/8. The majority of the consignments of the best sheep, however, did not realise up to 40/.

Among the principal sales were the following:—From H. M. Burcher, of Rowena, xbd w to 35/6; from Thompson Bros., of Coonamble, w to 40/, xbd w to 39/6; from M. and A. Bolger, of Warren, w to 35/3; from Penally Estate, Gular, w to 37/5; from Gulgo Estate, Condobolin, e to 35/5; from Yanco Experiment Farm, 90 xbd suckers to 33/10, average 30/8; from J. Donaldson, of Stockinbingal, w to 40/4; from J. Thompson, of Grenfell, xbd w to 43/9; from Walhallow Estate, Breeza, w to 36/10; from Arthur Lane, of Warren, xbd w to 36/, and w to 35/6; from Lindsay Bros., of Cathundral, xbd h to 40/1; from A. E. Bonnington, of Curban, shorn xbd h to 34/10; from H. Heldmann, of Milvale, w to 51/9, average 47/1, and xbd w to 47/, averaging 44/8; from A. W. Whitney, of Woodstock, e to 38/, and xbd e to 40/; from M'Gill and Co., of Narrabri, w to 40/6; from J. Newell, of Condobolin, xbd w to 38/3; from W. W. Dowling, of Warren, w to 38/10; from W. T. Lambert, of Trangie, xbd w to 39/5; from Mrs. M. A. Gibbs, of Trangie, e to 35/8; from R. Wilson, of Trangie, w to 35/7; from T. Crawley, of Quandialla, w to 36/; from A. E. Witts, of Collarenebri, xbd w to 36/; from Gulgo Estate, at Condobolin, xbd to 37/7.

CATTLE.

MARKET LOWER.

There was a yarding of 1577 cattle from 54 owners. The quality of the cattle was only medium and was mostly in lots of from 10 to 30, but there were several large consignments, including 132 from the Butterbone Pastoral Company, Ltd., 100 from Hain Rowley and Co., 200 from A. T. Creswick, and 70 from Milroy Station. The attendance of buyers was quite up to the average. All classes of the trade were represented, including mountain and coastal butchers. Competition was dull for every class of cattle, except odd lots of very prime young beef, which was in fair demand, but for all other sorts the market was lower, and in places difficulty was experienced in obtaining bids. The dulness continued right to the close of the sales, and on the day's proceedings prices were from 20/ to £2 per head cheaper than the rates prevailing on Monday last. A truck of 10 bullocks from J. Jones, of Gular, made to £29/5, and averaged £29/1/5. Another truck of eight bullocks, from J. H. Wood, of Grong Grong, sold to £29, and averaged £28/2/2.

Among the principal sales were the following:—From Milroy station at Brewarina, 6 bks to £25/1/, avg £21/19/4, and 14 cows and heifers to £19/19/, avg £15/0/3; from F. L. Treweeke, of Mungindi, 23 bks to £26, avg £23/12/2, and 3 cows to £18/15/, avg £17/7/8; from executors of R. F. M. Eckford, of Gurley, 11 cows to £16, avg £15/15/5; from J. H. and R. J. Fagan, of Cowra, 26 bks to £28/1/, avg £23/17/1, and 3 cows to £21, avg £18/13/4; from J. H. Wood, of Grong Grong, 8 bks to £29, avg £28/2/2; from G. Thompson, of Meerah North, 9 steers to £21/14/, avg £19; from J. M'Dowell, of Coonamble, bks to £25/1/; from A. Cameron, Trangie, cows to £19; from D. Cameron, of Trangie, cows to £19; from the Butterbone Pastoral Company, of Warren, 63 bks to £24, avg £20/8/5, and 68 cows to £16/16, avg £14/2/9; from Moore Bros., of Walgett, 7 cows and heifers to £19/17/6, avg £18/13/2; from A. T. Creswick, of Hay, 199 bullocks and steers to £22, avg £22/17/9; from Hilliawa Pastoral Co., of Hay, 17 bks to £28/12/6, avg £26/12/; from J. Jones, of Gular, 10 bks to £29/5/, avg £29/1/5; from F. M'Intyre, of Gilgandra, 6 bks and steers to £22/12/, avg £20/9/2; from W. J. Tallow: At yesterday's auctions 385 casks were catalogued as compared with 479 casks at the previous sales. There was a large muster of buyers present, and a strong demand prevailed, all grades selling at a slight advance on the closing rates of last week. Excellent clearances were effected. Quotations: Prime butchers' mixed £53/5/ to £51/10/, exceptional lines to £51/17/6 per ton; good £50/5/ to £51, medium £49 to £50, inferior £46 to £48, broken packages £41 to 44/5.

Leather: Manufacturers are without orders, whilst the hands of exporters are tied owing to lack of shipping; the result is that the leather market is in a state of absolute stagnation.

Bark: A steady inquiry has been met with during the past week at the following level of values:—Quotations: Best £9 to £9/10/, medium £8/5/ to £8/15/, light £6/15/ to £8, inferior £4 to £5/10/.

CASUALTIES.

A labourer named Woodbine, aged 50, residing in Evans-st, Rozelle, whilst working at the Federal Wharf, Druitt-street, yesterday, fell down the hold of a lighter, a distance of 15ft, and fractured his skull. He was removed to Sydney Hospital by the Civil Ambulance, but died before arrival.

GRENFELL.—The coroner held an inquest on the body of Samuel Peter Sawyer, who was found hanged at the Pinnacle. A verdict of suicide was returned.

LOYALIST CAMP STAFF.

Mr. A. K. Trethowan, M.L.C., who acted as commandant of the country loyalists' camp on the Sydney Cricket Ground during the recent strike, gave a dinner at the Wentworth Hotel last night to the official staff of the camp. It was an interesting gathering. During the evening the health of Mr. Trethowan was proposed by Mr. Victor H. Green, who acted as his chief of staff at the Cricket Ground. Mr. Green paid a high tribute to Mr. Trethowan's organising ability, and said all the members of the staff were agreed that they had never worked for a better "boss." In responding to the toast, Mr. Trethowan said that no one man could possibly have managed such a huge concern without the assistance of a hard-working and loyal staff. He owed his thanks—as the whole country did—to them all. Concluding, he expressed the hope that the gathering would be an annual one.

MINING.

FURTHER RISE IN "HILLS."

Extensive business was done in mining shares yesterday. Some groups, notably Queensland coppers and Malayan tins displayed irregularity; but Barriers were firm, and in their wake followed the Edna May stocks. Stimulated by a healthy inquiry, "Hills" rose 1/ to 54/9. British and North Brokens held out at former prices, and Junction Norths changed hands at 14/. New Burragorang eased /3 to 6/1. A distinctly weaker trend was manifested in the quotations for Mount Morgan and Hampdens, though other copper propositions were stationary.

Movements in Malayan tin-dredging concerns were anything but uniform. Larut commanded advanced bids, and buyers advanced to 51/, but sellers wanted 2/ more. Ratrut and Tongkah Compound hardened a shade, and Trong put on /3 to 10/3. On the strength of a small return, Ronpibon sold down to 20/1½. Among Westonias, Deeps found ready support at firmer rates, and Consols had steady prices.

The Deebook No. 1 dredge, operating on the Ronpibon property, recovered five tons of tin oxide during the fortnight ended October 5. The message reporting the above also states: "Kerang sticky, installing minitor in screen, expect improved recovery when installed."

The Debook dredge at Renong won 10 tons of tin product during the same period.

During the first half of September the Trong dredge ran 269 hours, and recovered six tons of tin oxide from 37,000 cubic yards. The average recovery was 1363lb of tin to the cubic yard.

TELEGRAPH CHARGES.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

A deputation from the Victorian Country Press Association waited upon the Postmaster General, Mr. Webster, to-day, on the subject of the charge of 2/6 now made for opening country telegraph offices on holidays for receipt of messages. Mr. Webster, in reply, stated that employees who were brought back on holidays earned double pay, and he was practically being asked to carry messages at two-fifths of their cost. He would go into the matter thoroughly, and announce his decision later.

THE TEACHING OF ECONOMICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In a recent leader apropos of impending changes in the system of arbitration and conciliation you commented on the absence in Australia of detached, independent students of economic and social questions, and you stated that the University had given little assistance in the detailed study of such matters. To a certain extent you are right.

As I have so often pointed out, university teachers in Australia find it almost impossible to do original work and to take part in the public discussion of problems such as you had in mind. The task of lecturing, of supervising studies, examining papers, attending to departmental business, and trying to keep abreast of the literature in their own subjects, is usually more than enough for the strength and time at their disposal. Especially is this the case when, as in economics (and I hope I shall be pardoned for referring to my own personal interest), the field is so vast and so full of manifold live interests, each of which has an enormous literature (books, periodicals, and official documents) for itself. Not only has the teacher to cover a field which in better equipped universities may be divided among a dozen or more lecturers, but he has to face the task without any assistance, and without the facilities for research provided in most modern universities. Consequently, researches which elsewhere might take a year will in Australia require several years of laborious collection of facts, and, moreover, considerable personal expense for books and documents not otherwise available. And no man who has a real interest in arriving at the truth of complicated matters can be satisfied with the superficial inquiries that so often pass current for research.

In spite of these difficulties more is being done than the public are perhaps aware of. Many University teachers give up much time to giving public addresses on questions of practical importance at the moment. Others turn out yearly a considerable number of monographs, the value of which only the future can decide. Often, too, they are obliged to turn aside from the bigger work they have set themselves to do to satisfy claims which the public make on them.

Although every scientific man wants to add to the sum of knowledge by becoming an original investigator, he does not on that account despise the work of teaching and training successive batches of younger men, for they are the men on whom the business and administration of the future will fall, and I have no doubt that their training will stand them in good stead.

The student anxious to do research work suffers from the same disability as the teacher. He has few facilities and no encouragement to publish. Speaking again of what concerns me personally, I can conscientiously say that I receive every year from students studies and monographs which ought to be published, but no student can afford to take the risk of publishing books and papers which cannot expect a wide circulation. What is wanted, and wanted more than anything else in this country, is the endowment of research in social and economical questions. When reasonable provision is made in this direction there will be no difficulty in finding men and women capable of doing valuable work. On this very question of conciliation and arbitration I have on my table at the present moment a student's thesis, which deals with the subject in so careful and judicial a manner that I considered it my duty to bring it under the notice of the Minister for Labour and Industry. I am, etc.,

R. F. IRVINE.

BEETHOVEN NIGHTS.

Admiration for the great composers deepens with intimacy and in the case of the greatest of them all the feelings of delight which arise from a finely accomplished interpretation of enchanting music is united with the knowledge that the listeners themselves are the better for what they hear. Beethoven presents, in fact, the sound basis of cultivated art without which students would remain through life at a loss in their endeavour to form a true appreciation of the various modern developments of it. Hence the satisfaction now felt in the performance of the ten sonatas for piano and violin by Messrs. Edward Goll and Henri Verbrugghen, who continued their task of agreeably instructing the public by rendering at the Conservatorium last night three examples of Beethoven's middle period.

The three works in question forming Opus 30 were dedicated to the Emperor Alexander I. of Russia. Beginning with Sonata No. 6 in A, the two artists maintained with skill the intimate style of performance from which all suggestion of display is avoided by reason of the easy finish with which technical difficulties are overcome. The exchange of brief running passages between the two instruments, effected with such perfect balance of tone, illustrated the point referred to. The "adagio molto espressivo" afforded opportunity for breadth of tone in the enunciation of a stately theme which the violinist rendered with many tender accentuations; and there was a lovely allegretto with variations to which dainty touches on the one side, and a sparkling lightness on the other, contributed additional grace. The applause at the conclusion was even warmer than on the opening night, and both artists were recalled again and again.

Probably the movement in "Sonata No. 8 in G" which most captivated the audience was the "Tempo di Minuetto," in which the principal theme was expressed in a tone of the utmost tenderness by the violinist, whilst the music proceeded from one enchanting surprise to another right to the end. In "No. 7 in C Minor," as in the first movement of No. 8, there were various brief allusions to the Italian manner in operettas of the period, in which both artists brought out all the playful charm of the fugitive reference, whilst at the close a fortissimo crescendo of an exquisitely graduated character was especially admired. A beautiful adagio, the dance-like gaiety of the scherzo, and a finale that was all grace and excitement terminated the evening.

The sonata series will be finished to-morrow night, and the season will conclude with the assistance of the Verbrugghen String Quartette on Monday.

FIFTY YEARS' WORK.

NIGHT REFUGE AND SOUP KITCHEN.

The fiftieth annual meeting of the City Night Refuge and Soup Kitchen, which was established in 1868, principally through the instrumentality of Captain D. F. C. Scott, then police magistrate at the Central Police Court, was held at the institution yesterday afternoon. The Lieutenant-Governor (Sir William Cullen), who was attended by Brigadier-General Finn, presided, and amongst others present were Mr. E. Stedman (vice-president), the Rev. W. A. S. Anderson, Capt. T. M'Lellan, and Messrs. W. H. Brown, W. J. Cryer, W. D. B. Creagh, W. Dickson, W. E. Gates, J. B. Gibbs, A. H. Love, and H. Talkes.

The annual report, which was presented by the hon. secretary, Mr. T. Burton Gibbs, and adopted, stated that the total number of meals supplied during the year, including dinners, Sunday morning breakfasts, and outdoor relief, was 45,957, and shelter was afforded to 18,457 men, women, and children. There had again been a very large decrease in the number of men who availed themselves of the benefits of the institution, amounting to one-third, while the number of meals given to adult females and to children also showed a large decrease, all accounted for, no doubt, by the strain on human life of the terrible war, which was bringing desolation wherever it traversed and unhappiness everywhere.

Sir William Cullen said that the institution during the past half century had been of immense benefit to the community. It had befriended the friendless in a manner which would bring its own reward. Referring to the reference in the report to the war, Sir William said that it was not wholly true, because he was quite certain that a large number of people, the majority, in fact, who had suffered most amongst their own community, felt that there was something more in it—something that uplifted the spirit of the community and made them realise that times of prosperity and carelessness did not bring out the best qualities in the community.

The office-bearers were re-elected.

It was then arranged that a collection on behalf of the Mine-sweepers' Fund should be taken.

MOTHER'S

FAVOURITE.

Foolish mothers dose their babies with home-made concoctions or something recommended by a neighbour, and perhaps upset the little stomach and make the baby cross and uncomfortable by this mistaken economy.

Wise mothers do not experiment with untried nostrums, but depend on a remedy which has been compiled from the scientific prescription of a famous physician, and is designed to banish the cold without upsetting the digestive organs. Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery is this remedy, and mothers may give it to their babies, secure in the knowledge that coughs and colds will no longer rack the little bodies.

DO YOU DREAD

THIS CHANGEABLE WEATHER?

Most people do, for it means coughs and colds, but you need not fear if you have a bottle of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery in the house. A dose taken at the beginning of a cold will relieve and prevent Influenza, Bronchitis, and all Throat Troubles.
